Administrator Q & A

Mr. Shepler - Principal

Q: How does it feel to be in charge of a high school with almost 4,000 students?
A: Sometimes it's overwhelming, but I enjoy being around and influencing the students. I don't want to be known as just a principal, I want to be a difference maker in these students' lives.

Lt. Kimbrough - Officer

Q: How do you feel when working with high school students?
A: Even though it's overwhelming, it gives us, as officers, opportunities to interact with the students, and it gives the students opportunities to have a positive experience with officers.

Mrs. Brown - Freshman Principal

Q: What do you, as the freshman principal, do to keep freshmen excited about high school?
A: They begin high school with a blank slate, and my job in the academy is to help them fill it with positive activities and experiences.

Teens fight to keep their "normal" lives in the midst of a recession

10.14.09 Ayla Hardy packages meat behind the deli counter at Meijer. Although she was typically a cashier, Hardy did many jobs around the store, even the ones she thought were "the grossest."

Six twenty-five, wake up for school. Seven thirty-five, first period begins. Two-fifty, are we done yet?

Not quite, for senior Ayla Hardy, her day had hardly begun when most students were heading home for a quick nap.

After leaving school, Hardy worked between five and six days a week at Meijer. She was a cashier, stocked shelves, cleaned, you name it- she did it.

"I've had to really open my availability to literally like every day, mostly because I have a lot of responsibilities that I need to meet," Hardy said. "Like my phone bill, the cable bill, I buy food a lot, car insurance, food for all of the animals, my mom doesn't have a job so a lot of the things I shouldn't have to deal with yet, but I have to."

At Meijer, she averaged a total of 38 hours per week, making just above minimum wage.

"It's hard to balance everything," Hardy said. "Things have definitely changed for me, I wasn't able to hang out with my friends at all because I just worked constantly. My grades dropped, but I don't get off of work until like 10 every night, which means I don't get home until around 10:30, and after a shower it's hard to get my homework done and fall asleep."

Hardy had to choose between being a "normal" teen and working to support herself and her mother, a choice that all too many teens were facing the burden of bearing.

While Indianapolis as a city was prospering, many areas of the city's East Side were falling apart. The township saw a loss in it's student population, loss of jobs, loss of restaurants, everything seemed to be down.

With the average household income sitting just above $40,000 many families in the township, felt the sweat of the recession dripping off their backs.

"I don't know," Hardy said. "Times are just really tough right now."

Although 2009 seemed only to bring economic hardship, many looked to 2010 with high hopes.

"Are we down?" James Taylor, school social worker, asked. "Yes, the East Side struggles, especially compared to your other townships and areas of town. But I certainly wouldn't count us out."

"Times are just really tough right now."

Speedway

With two locations on either side of 16 St., Speedway was a popular place in the mornings for students to fill up not only their tanks but their stomachs. Many students stopped in each morning to get their caffeine and breakfast items. "I usually get a slushy or a fountain drink," junior Emily Abrams said. "It's the quickest place to go at 7 in the morning."

Jockamo

Rather than ordering pizza from the usual Dominos, Pizza King, or Little Caesars, Jockamos, in historic Irvington, was a local pizza place that became more popular with the student body. "I got the Slaughterhouse 5 and it was amazing," senior Ashley Melhorn said. "I like that the servers wore whatever they wanted to because it made it more inviting; it wasn't like all the other restaurants."

Downtown Indianapolis

The Indianapolis Zoo, Circle Centre Mall, White River State Park, the canal, and a variety of places to eat were part of the endless possibilities where students could go and hang out in downtown Indianapolis. "My favorite part about downtown is the C

Broad Ripple

Broad Ripple was an excellent place to take a date. Hot Box Pizza and Noodles Company were among the popular choices to eat and the canal or Kiln Creations were a great ways to treat a date after dinner instead of a movie. Antique shops, small boutiques, and music shops also made Broad Ripple a great place to go and hang out with friends. "I like going to the Applebee's because of the scenery and atmosphere," sophomore Whitney Smith said. "It's a more urban and modern part of the city."

"My favorite part of Indianapolis is probably Irvington." - Jack Chamberlain, 10

"One of my favorite places to eat is Taco Hut, I usually get two Crunch Wrap Supremes and three hard tacos with a side order of Cina Twists." - AJ Eiler, 12

Ft. Square

When looking for something to do other than movies or just hanging out at the mall students could go to Fountain Square and enjoy activities such as Friday night swing dancing or duck pin bowling. "I go because I enjoy dancing, and it's really fast, fun, and easy to catch onto," senior Colton Williamson said. He went swing dancing with close friends. "Swing is such a smooth and male-dominant type of dance." Students could go swing dancing every second and fourth Friday.

Frosty Boy

Although Frosty Boy was only open from March to November, it still provided a great place to eat and meet friends. "I usually get an Oreo and M&M flurry and a Red Soda Float," senior Emily Klacik said. "It's nice to just go there in spring and summer and just sit outside and eat your ice cream." Frosty Boy also sold hoodies for those chilly fall evenings.

Irvington

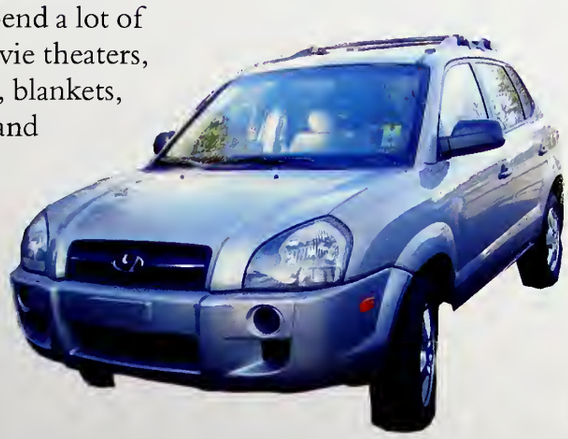
Irvington, founded in 1870, is a very historic part of Indianapolis. The suburb held many events throughout the year such as a Halloween festival, a carnival and an ice cream social. Historical houses, boutiques and parks lined the few bricked streets and reflected the romantic design that Irvington was built for.

Tibb's Drive In

Rather than having to spend a lot of money at the regular movie theaters, students gathered snacks, blankets, and their closest friends and went to Tibb's Drive In. "It isn't like a movie theater in the respects that you can talk, get up, and generally have a good time without really disrupting other people," senior Emily Hess said. The theater was open seasonally from March to October.



Steak n' Shake

Go in anytime after a choir competition or a big game and Steak n' Shake was packed. Students ate their way through burgers, fries, and of course a shake for a fair price. "I always recognize a few people from school when I work. A lot of people eat here," senior Sean Williams said.

Hippie Day
He was one rad dude, one cool cat, one far-out, groovy guy. Nick Wilson donned the ever-popular tie-dye shirt, baggy jeans and shaggy hair for Hippie Day. On this particular Thursday, a sea of colors and afros filled the halls.

Cartoon Day
"We just wanted to do something that no one else would do, but we wanted to be connected in someway," senior Sarah French said. "I thought it was great; we had a lot of fun." French and her brother Ricky joined a cast of Disney and Nickelodeon characters on Cartoon Day. While some chose to wear their childhood memories on old T-shirts or backpacks, French and others delighted in playing make-believe.

"This was the first musical I had ever been in. A lot of people may be scared to try out for something like Godspell but you never know. I encourage everyone to go after it because in the end, you will definitely not regret it. I truly thought this musical was so amazing and I have never experienced anything that could compare to it. It upset the entire cast when Godspell was over because we had days when we wished we could do it all over again."
- Keirsten Hodgens, 10

"Godspell was more than just acting. There was a lot of emotion and you could see how much time and effort the entire cast whole-heartedly put into it. That is what I love to see when I am watching a performance." - Kaylee Branch, 10

"I know most of the cast, and they are wonderful and hard-working people. My favorite part was with Andre and Logan singing the hilarious olden-style song." - Jesse Emrich, 12

fighting for five

Through last-minute plays, controversial calls and true school spirit, the state-winning game meant something different to everyone

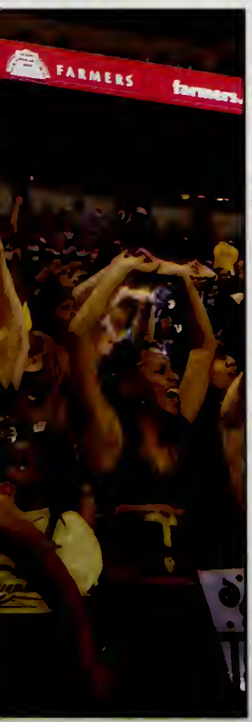
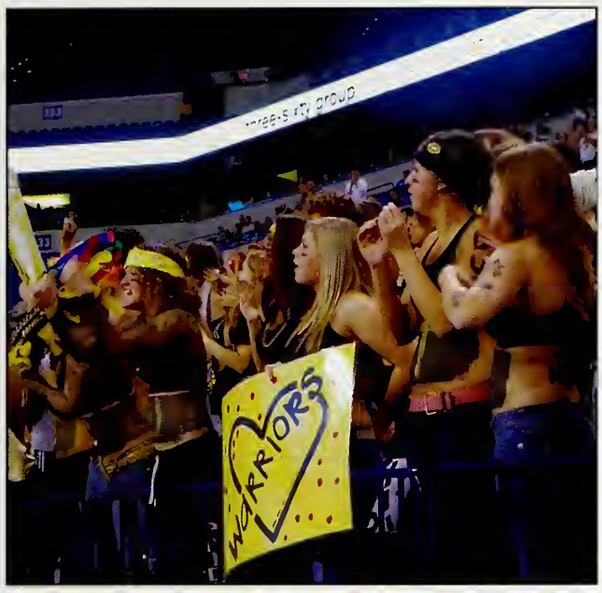
"It meant a lot to me because it was the first game I could go to in high school. For all of our other wins, I was in middle school." - Alyssa Jennings, 11

"It was really cool, because no one else got to be around the players and the coaches, around all that excitement. I was on the field." - Tess Howard, 12



Cheerleader Evann Smith fills in the letters of the state banner



Superfan, Maggie Adams

"In the beginning I was really psyched and as the last quarter happened I could hardly watch," superfan Maggie Adams said. Adams made it to all games but one. "I only missed the Merrillville game," Adams said.

"The second Maurice [Magee] got the ball, I just got a rush of adrenaline," Adams said. "I couldn't focus, I couldn't make words come out of my mouth." Adams, who at times seemed to be the team's biggest fan was being encouraged to stand up and cheer, but just couldn't. "It was unexplainable," she said. "I couldn't think to cheer, or scream, or anything. I just had to watch."

Adams never doubted the team she loved so much. "I didn't second guess it," she said. "I just always knew we were going to win."

O-Line, Zach Graves

Senior Offensive Lineman, Zach Graves felt his shot at a state title slip away right before his very eyes.

"I just knew that he landed out," Graves said. "But I didn't see it, I just felt it." "I thought it was just another bad call, until I saw the replay."

After "the call" Graves felt like any other fan in the stands, that we had just lost the game. However, Graves held tightly to his little kernel of hope. "Even when it looked like we wouldn't win, I still knew we would," Graves said. "I always had hope."

For many of the football players, even mentioning the name Greyhounds strikes a nerve. But not for this player, reaching for the medal he proudly wears, "I don't really care because it's ours." Graves said. "They can't take this off my neck."

Father and Coach, John Hart

"There is no 'I' in team," Coach John Hart said. "It wasn't Shakir's game, it wasn't Derek's game, it wasn't anyone's game- it was all of us." Hart stressed how well the team worked together, banding together in the final moments of the game.

"It was a judgment call, the entire game of football is made up of judgment calls," Hart said. "It was just pure passion and emotion out on that field. When they found out that they lost I can understand how they felt, those were his [Coach Mo Moriarty] emotions coming out."

While the comments about the highly controversial call would have been enough to get anyone steaming, Hart remained very gracious about his team's win. He was not only proud as a coach, but as the father of quarterback, Derek Hart.

"It's something that we can talk about and share not only now, but as he gets older and grows," Hart said.

"It was fun, it was exciting. Everyone was going wild." - Robert Champion, 12

"I think they [Carmel] need to get over it, because there are 100 calls in a game. We just got our's at the end, and it all balances out." - Jackson Coram, 12

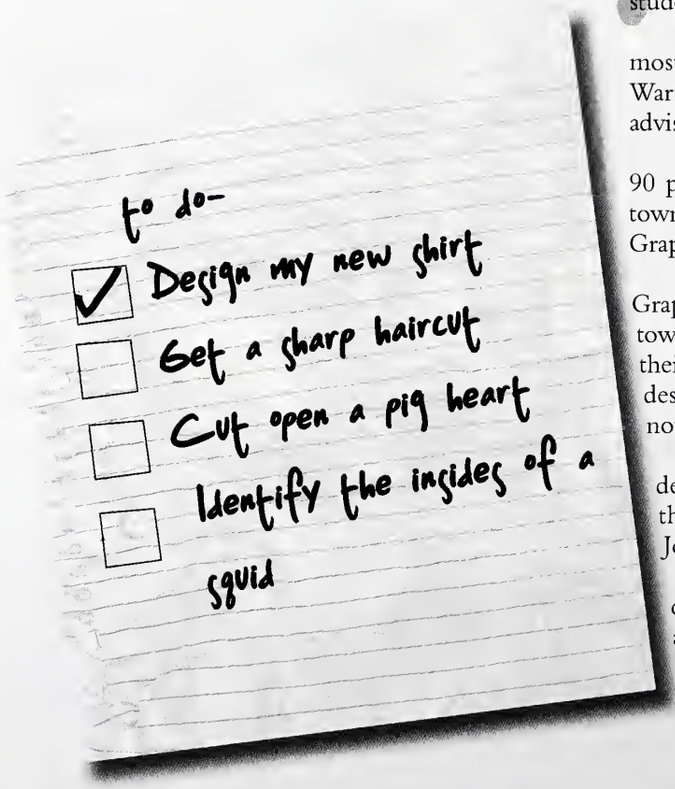
Bringing Designs to Life



All the discipline referrals, those middle school agendas, and fifth grade graduation paddles that were signed at Grassy Creek at the end of the year were made in the Walker Career Center Print Shop with help from Graphic Imaging students.

"The students in this class help print most of the paper materials used all around Warren Township," Mr. Dave Prevost, advisor of the Graphic Imaging class, said.

The Print Shop actually prints about 90 percent of forms used throughout the township, many of which were made in the Graphic Imaging class.

Along with all the materials the Graphic Imaging class made for the township, the students in the class made their own designs and transferred the designs onto different products like notebooks and T-shirts.

"I volunteered to hand-draw the design and make all the new shirts for the National Art Honor Society," senior Jon Penniston said.

Senior Justin Ginn loved the class but he liked a different side of the assignments, the computer generated ones.

"I love the class, I really like being able to generate my designs on the computer then putting them on different things," Ginn said. "It's really cool to see a design that I think of become a shirt or a notebook."

Prevost enjoyed the class just as much as his students did. He liked teaching the kids about the machines and different designs techniques.

"I enjoy watching the kids learn and design whatever they can think of," Prevost said. "Being able to teach them how to make their designs come to life is the best part of my job."

The imaging class also helped them in the future if they planned on majoring in design imaging in college. Students taking the class get two credit hours per semester at Vincennes University. Students like Penniston and Ginn planned to take advantage of that opportunity.

"I plan on going to Vincennes to further my education in either making shirts or possibly the press operator making pamphlets and flyers," Penniston said. "This class has helped me make my mind up on what I want to do in the future."

"I plan on attending Vincennes to study more of the computer design stuff that I like to do," Ginn said.

KICKING INTO SECTIONALS

Even though they had to push through a rough season, the team was determined to come out with a sectional trophy

Judging by their record no one expected the boys soccer team to do very well in sectionals this season. However, they surprised everyone and played the best game of their season, but unfortunately in the end came up a bit short.

The boys knew at the beginning of the season if they wanted to have a chance at winning sectionals they were going to have to give it their all and dedicate themselves to working hard.

Over the summer the boys practiced twice-a-day. Beginning at the crack of dawn, new head coach A.J. McAdams had the boys "up and at'em" and ready for practice. Starting off with a light jog, practice then progressed into intense bleachers, vigorous abdominal workouts, and concluded with technical ball work.

As the season progressed the Warriors looked to senior Christian Wilson for answers. After many tough losses the team hoped to rebound in their next match against Heritage Christian. Sadly, the rest of the season did not go as hoped. Dealing with multiple injury problems, the Warriors won just three games with ten losses. The only thing left to play for was sectionals.

When the sectional draw was released the warriors got news that they would have to take on the Mount Vernon Marauders first round. The week leading up to sectionals McAdams had the boys hard at work, putting them in a "lose and go home" mind set. This would be the first game that the warriors would have a full, and healthy roster since the first game of the season.

"Having a full roster really helped us in this game because in most of the other ones half our team wasn't able to play," sophomore Tristian White said.

Senior Levi Fistrovich, who broke his collar bone in the second game of the season, was healthy enough to return back to the roster just in time for sectionals. Fistrovich proved his dominate role on the team by scoring the first goal of the game.

Taking the field 11 at a time, the Warriors got prepared for a much anticipated game. With no scores from either teams in the first half, senior Levi Fistrovich took control and scored the only goal for the Warriors with 15 minutes left of the second half. Two minutes later, the team was penalized with a foul resulting in a Mount Vernon goal, sending the two teams into overtime.

"I thought this game was a tough one, but I think we fought through it," freshman Jose Montes said.

Fighting in the overtime was tough, but the boys played hard, especially senior Christian Wilson who played a phenomenal game. Unfortunately, this was not enough, and the boys were then forced into a second over time.

Loosing the game was a big disappointment to the team, but they also had a lot to celebrate about.

"Even though we had a low record, the kids never stopped, and they got better towards the end of the season," McAdams said.

Ashley Bedwell: Energizer bunny

Leadership is doing something for others just to do it, not by being asked. Senior Ashley Bedwell did just that around our community.

At the Julian Center, a nonprofit agency that provides counseling and shelters families, Bedwell and some of her camping friends made baby blankets for the babies that were staying there. They get material donated to them for the cause or they buy it themselves, sew the blankets themselves, and then use yarn to add detail to the blankets.

Bedwell and her mother's knitting group got together and knitted scarves for the ladies living in the Julian Center through a program called Scarves of Love. They ended up making approximately 150 scarves for the ladies.

"Giving with not expecting anything in return is how I was taught and is something that I will always live by," Bedwell said. "Helping people makes me feel great! I have already been blessed and I want to share what I have with other people through as much community service as possible."

At the Disabled American Veterans home, Bedwell, her family, and friends fixed the men living there a Christmas breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, orange juice, and milk.

They performed music for them, played games, and colored pictures for them. The men staying there told Bedwell's family and friends stories about there lives and struggles.

"Ashley is one of those leaders who is quiet and unassuming and never demands recognition or attention but she is one of the most dependable, conscientious, and hardworking Student Council Members," Ms. Wolff said. "She is always in a great mood, always smiling, and always eager to help out,"

"She's like the Warren Central version of the Energizer Bunny!" Ms. Wolff added.

"I have always been blessed, and I want to share what I have with other people."

HISTORY IN THE MAKING

Relying on a young group of girls, the volleyball team worked hard all season to accomplish a goal that has not been done in over 20 years

It was a historic year in the Warrior Nation for the Lady Warrior volleyball team. It had been a grueling 22 years since the last time they were able to hold a sectional trophy in the air, but that all changed this season.

Closing the season with a record of 20-12, the Lady Warriors looked to a very tough sectional tournament where they would have to take on Cathedral High School in their first match. The Irish program has had much success past years, winning 10 straight sectional titles with the past two of them ending in state titles.

For many of the members on the team, it was their first sectional appearance. The Warriors were a predominately young team led by the only senior, Rachel Wilkinson, who made her fourth sectional run.

When it finally came time to play, the Warriors went straight to work capturing the first crucial points of the game. The Warriors continued to keep the ball rolling and caught the Irish off guard, taking game one by storm with a score of 25-22.

At the break, the Warriors regrouped and took the court again to do the same thing. They came out strong, as did the Irish. Exchanging point for point, game two was getting heated.

Neither team was ready to get out this early. Digging deep and pushing through, the young team was able to hang in there against the talented Irish team and came out with another win with the score of 25-23.

In game three, the Warriors laid it all on the line and went out guns blazzin'. Giving them strong support, the crowd rose to their feet and cheered as they got point after point, and took down the Irish yet again (25-10). It had been eight years since the Warriors had been able to take down the Irish.

"Playing like we did and beating Cathedral, the defending state champs, for the first time was great," sophomore Rachel Banter said. "But moving on in sectionals was even better."

With a new found sense of confidence the Warriors looked to tackle an even bigger goal, a sectional title. Only two teams stood in their way now, Indianapolis Arlington and Lawrence North.

In round two, the Warriors would take on Indianapolis Arlington. The match was short, sweet, and to the point only allowing Arlington to score 10 points the entire match. With this win the Warriors sealed the deal and advanced to the finals.

The girls kept their momentum from the previous two games in the final match. Earlier in the season the lady Warriors took a hard loss to the Lawrence North Wildcats, and now this would be their time for revenge.

The game was not even close the second time around. With a chip on their shoulder, the Warriors steam rolled over the Wildcats, and claimed the sectional trophy. This was the first time the Warriors have been able to bring the sectional trophy home in over two decades.

"Winning sectionals meant a lot to me. I've worked hard for four years and it all paid off. It felt great to beat Cathedral and then go on to win it all." -Rachel Wilkinson, 12

Huddle Up Against Hunger

Underdog comes out on top

Coming out labeled as the underdog, no one expected Ms. Julia Oblon to even come close to winning the HUAH competition, especially her rivals Mr. Chris Pollock and Mr. Jeff Arvin.

Both Arvin and Pollock were very confident in themselves and believed they were going to win the competition.

"They are not champions like I am," Arvin said.

Winning the competition four out of seven years, Arvin really believed he had the cat in the bag. He set a high goal of 3,000 cans and planned on reaching his goal by getting his students involved as much as possible.

Any student who brought in more than 20 cans was invited to attend a pizza party Arvin held after school. He also made sure his students understood that whether he won or lost the competition, it was about the cause and the thought of helping others.

Pollock, whose goal was to just collect more than Arvin, also had high hopes for himself in the competition. He got his students involved just like Arvin, but he decided to make it a little more creative.

Every student who brought in 10 cans received a button and this button was an invitation to a donut party. Any student who brought in 20 cans, were invited to a luau hosted by Pollock.

Unfortunately, they both came up just a little too short. With Arvin's and Pollock's cans combined they had a total of 1,575 cans. The winner was the underdog, Oblon. She came out a champion with a whopping 2,207 cans.

"I try to not only make it fun, but also challenging for students," Oblon said.

Oblon, like her rival, also tried to come up with interesting ways for students to get involved. She sold necklaces from Africa for $1 and used the money to buy cans. She took a group of students on a trip to Meijer to buy cans and afterwards went to McDonalds for breakfast.

She and some students went door to door asking for cans and afterwards they had a chili supper at a student's house.

In Warren's 25th year of HUAH, a total of 21,065 cans collected helped over 100 families who were in need. Although it was a competition, it was really about giving to those in need.

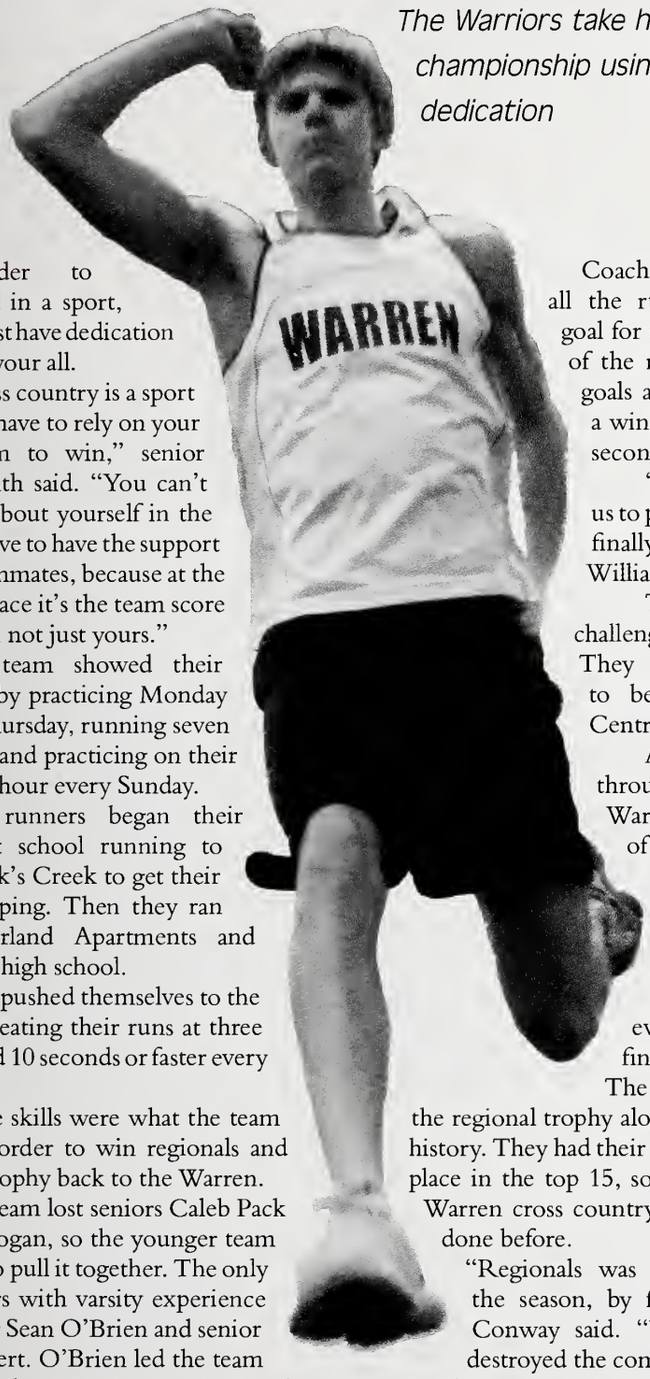
RACING INTO REGIONALS

The Warriors take home the regional championship using hard work and dedication



In order to succeed in a sport, you must have dedication and give it your all.

"Cross country is a sport where you have to rely on your whole team to win," senior Dustin Smith said. "You can't just think about yourself in the race, you have to have the support of your teammates, because at the end of the race it's the team score that counts, not just yours."

The team showed their dedication by practicing Monday through Thursday, running seven miles a day and practicing on their own for an hour every Sunday.

The runners began their workout at school running to McCormick's Creek to get their blood pumping. Then they ran to Cumberland Apartments and back to the high school.

They pushed themselves to the max by repeating their runs at three minutes and 10 seconds or faster every Monday.

These skills were what the team needed in order to win regionals and bring the trophy back to the Warren.

The team lost seniors Caleb Pack and Sean Logan, so the younger team really had to pull it together. The only two runners with varsity experience were junior Sean O'Brien and senior William Wert. O'Brien led the team by setting the pace in practices and meets, while Wert was number three overall on the team. Wert improved his running time by 32 seconds from his last season.

Throughout the season, the team really stepped it up by placing second in County and winning sectionals against their rivals, Franklin Central.

Coach Joe Brooks gave all the runners a specific goal for them to meet. All of the runners met their goals and gave the team a win that ranked them second in state.

"It was so nice for us to pull it together and finally finish as a team," William Wert said.

The team's next challenge was regionals. They knew the team to beat was Franklin Central.

About halfway through the meet the Warriors took control of the race by having all of their seven runners finish before their competitors' fourth runner even crossed the finish line.

The team took home the regional trophy along with a piece of history. They had their entire varsity team place in the top 15, something that past Warren cross country teams had never done before.

"Regionals was the best race of the season, by far," senior Tyler Conway said. "We went in and destroyed the competition."

The team took control of the race from beginning to end. They showed their fans and their competitors their will to win and what it really takes to become a Warren Central cross country runner.

It's Only A Straw...

to do-
- [x] Hide my addiction

- [ ] Go to the zoo with my Marine Biology class
- [ ] Check out my DNA in Genetics

Senior Brittany Garrod had to leave lunch and sneak into the bathroom to get her fix. This could be one of the only times she could get it in, so it was now or never. All she could think about was that feeling she was going to get and how good it was going to feel when she got it. Garrod was addicted. But not to a drug, to a straw.

Mr. Brian Miller, psychology teacher, presented the extra-credit Straw Addiction Lab as a chance for his students to see how addiction changes a person's character causing them to cheat, steal and lie to get what they want.

"Drug addiction affects many people, and I wanted to show students how a drug addict might go through a day," Miller said.

Whenever the students wanted to drink something, they had to find a way for others not to see them use their straw.

"They could not let others see them drink from the straw," Miller said. "The only people who could see them or talk to them about this was other straw users."

For some students, hiding the straw was a challenge, and they couldn't make it through the day.

There were a few students who managed to accomplish the task like Garrod and junior Deborah Randall. The ones who made it had to be creative about how they were going to hide their addiction from their friends, families and classmates. One way Garrod got creative was by meeting up with other straw addicts at lunch.

"At lunch I met up with others who were doing the same thing, and we went to the bathroom and sat in different stalls to drink our milk through our straws," Garrod said. "It was really gross but we did what we had to do to use our straws."

Randall also had a problem with her addiction at lunch.

"I bought a drink at lunch but couldn't drink it in front of my friends, so I had to wait until passing period," Randall said. "After lunch, I was walking with my friend and I wanted a drink from my straw really bad so I had to quickly turn my back and take a drink. When I turned back around my friend started asking me what I did, and I had to think fast and make up an excuse so I said I sneezed."

"The hardest part was having to lie and make up excuses for what I was doing," Randall said.

"I think the hardest part of the day was knowing someone out there was doing the same thing I was but with a worse product," Garrod said.

RETURN TO GLORY

The football team fights through a double overtime to win their seventh state championship in school history

"This team made a promise, and they fulfilled their promise."

These were the words of assistant coach Steve Tutsie and the promise he was referring to was the one made by the football team. They made a promise to be the hardest working team in Indiana and win the 5A State championship.

To win State the Warriors had to win one last game against the Carmel Greyhounds. The Greyhounds beat the Warriors once before by two points and had been to the state game the three previous years.

"It was important to make improvements after that game against Carmel," Tutsie said. "The guys worked hard and became students of the game."

Their hard work was paying off because the boys were keeping the score close. At halftime the game was tied at 14.

Midway through the fourth quarter, starting senior Shakir Bell was temporarily sidelined with an ankle injury. With 10 seconds left in the game, Carmel was winning 28 to 20 and Warren had to score in order to still have a chance to become champions.

With Bell on the sideline, the team shined their light on another star, senior Maurice Magee.

"In the fourth quarter, they proved I'm not the only talent on the field. They proved they could do it without me." -Shakir Bell, 12

Magee had one down and 10 seconds left to get the score. Senior Derek Hart threw the ball towards the corner of the end zone and as everybody watched in silence, Magee caught the ball.

A defender pushed Magee out of bounds as he was coming down with the ball. The referee closest to the play ruled the catch a force out and the pass was a touchdown.

Senior Ja'Juan Keys sealed the tie with the two-point conversion that sent the game into overtime.

After the first overtime, the score was yet again tied at 36, which sent the game into a second overtime.

Carmel had the ball first. With one yard from the end zone on fourth down, their quarterback threw the ball and it was an incomplete pass.

Now all that was needed was a touchdown to be scored, and with two yards to go, Derek Hart did just that. He pushed the ball in and the Warriors began to celebrate their seventh championship in school history.

Along with winning, Bell broke a high school record. He was the first 5A player to rush for more than 3,000 yards in a season. The record was previously held by Darren Evans, who played on the 2006 championship team.

"I did not break this by myself," Bell said. "We accomplished it as an offense."

This was the first year head coach John Hart won state with Warren, but Hart won one other state championship with his previous team, Evansville Reitz.

"Most people don't understand how difficult it is to win a championship," Hart said. "I am very proud to be a part of this 2009 state championship team."

Student Council gives 91 kids Christmas

"Merry Christmas," a young child gleefully shouts and smiles ear to ear as she piles off the bus and hurries in line for her next instruction. "Haven't you ever been here?" another child questions.

For some, this was their first year at the WCHS Children's Christmas Party. Emily has been here a couple times, and she is only in the third grade. However, her smile and watchful blue eyes mirrored the appreciation and joy she had being here.

The second bus arrived and the students rushed into the school, seeking shelter from the cold. Many giggled as the others looked with urgency to find their sponsor. High school students held up their signs and smiled while they waited for their kids.

"It makes kids so much happier because we make it possible for them to believe and have that Christmas spirit," junior Tim Cho said.

It is true, because this Christmas party provided the presents, the food, the arts and crafts, and especially Mr. and Mrs. Claus. As Billy walked up to get his picture taken with Santa, he held junior Tyisha Hamilton's hand and rushed to the chair with excitement.

"All the students are so helpful," Mrs. Claus said. "We are so blessed."

Every year, Warren "adopts" children from surrounding elementary schools and provides them with gifts and necessities. However, this year there was an increase in children and families, instead of donations.

"I have noticed that there was less involvement in getting donations this year," math teacher Mr. William Meredith said. "In the past we have raised $1,400, but this year we raised $1,200."

Warren adopted 91 children from three Warren Township elementary schools. In the past, classes that have adopted children received help from the stores as well.

"I try to get enough money to provide a turkey dinner to the families when I have brothers and sisters," Meredith said.

These children are picked by teachers or specifically requested by the families. StuCo's Children's Christmas Party was one of many organizations that these elementary schools use.

"Because of the increase in children, we try to spread them out as much as possible so they are all met," Patterson said.

From playing Sorry to getting to meet Santa and Mrs. Claus, the bond that students built with one another will never be lost to time. The children were placed in a safe environment where they met others with similar situations and who were there to help and make their lives a little bit better for that one night. However, sometimes the children ended up affecting the sponsors instead.

"It's a great thing to do," junior Devin Scott said. "It touches my heart."

Medieval Times

A group of four friends and cast mates sat in the small hallway just outside of Mr. Dustin Podgorski's choir room. There was some laughter, smiles and even a few eye-rolls. One thing that was definitely not running short in this group was memories.

"Well, you can't really say it went off without a hitch," senior Terry Arnold said. "But hey- it went off."

His other cast members laughed in remembrance of the broken goblets, a riser fiasco, forgotten lyrics and other problems encountered during the Madrigal Dinner. Although the cast noticed and recognized their performing errors, to the audience the show was almost seamless.

"I think it was our forty-first show," senior Justin Bauerle said. "Yeah, and it was definitely better than last year's." Bauerle's sarcastic comment struck a comedic chord with fellow cast mates, because the previous year's show was cancelled.

"It was really special for me, not just because I'm a senior, but because we got to carry on a Warren tradition," Kayla Kirkman said.

"A lot of people join Chambers just to be in the show, it's a really fun experience," Bauerle said.

The Madrigal Dinner began in 1967 and has been a hit at Warren ever since.

"It's just really fun," Arnold said. "You wear costumes, you eat, you're with your friends, it's just fun."

There was more to it than just members of the Chamber Singers dressing up in flowing robes and feathered hats to serenade guests while they dined.

"It's a way for us to showcase our songs," Arnold said. While guests of the dinner enjoyed their catered feast, volunteering members of other choirs acted as servers.

Every year two seniors are picked to act as King and Queen. This year Terry Arnold and Kayla Kirkman shared the royal title. "You have to stay in character the entire time," Arnold said.

"Yeah, it was really funny because some guy with a camera kept taking our pictures during our performance," Bauerle said. "We had to just try to go a long with what was happening. We kept saying, 'it's just lightning', or calling the man a witch or a dragon. Something like that seems like an accident, but it made the show fun."

BLOOD AND GUTS

Warren Central has always gone above and beyond the call of duty when it comes to giving back to the community.

Whether it be the National Art Honors Society making bowls to help feed the homeless, or Student Council sponsoring Huddle Up Against Hunger, Warriors always gave to those in need. Even if it meant giving up something very personal.

For one student, senior Leslie MacDonald, donating blood wasn't the problem- it was the procedure that provided the hang up.

"I've always been afraid of needles," MacDonald said.

But this year she felt really compelled to give.

"I can't really say why, but it just felt like the right time," MacDonald said. "My mom always gives blood, and so do my friends- it just kind of felt like the right thing to do."

MacDonald, like many other teens, faced her fears and embraced the needle. In all, 250 Warriors donated.

"At first, I was really just afraid of the needle," MacDonald said. "They have you just sit in this chair and wait, and after they started drawing my blood, my fear was that I would pass out."

However, she soon realized that the only thing to fear was fear itself.

"I was afraid, but it really didn't hurt," MacDonald said. "I think I just psyched myself out."

Many students argued that the first "finger-prick" blood test is what hurts the worst, however, MacDonald disagreed.

"The finger prick was my favorite part," she said.

The worst part for her was the waiting, not the needle.

"You're giving, but you're just sitting in the chair... thinking about how afraid you are of fainting," she said.

When given the chance, MacDonald would give again- in a heartbeat.

"It was all totally worth it," she said.

Love Is In The Air

Dating on a budget: It's the little things that count

Card? Three dollars. Stuffed animal? Five dollars. Seventy-two bananas? 16 dollars. A cute and inexpensive way to ask someone to be your Valentine? Priceless.

Bananas are most likely not on a regular Valentine's Day checklist, but for senior Erik Jones it was his way of telling junior Emily Abrams that he was bananas for her. Along with a Hallmark card and stuffed monkey, Jones filled Abrams drawer in the journalism room with 72 bananas as a surprise for Valentine's Day.

With the economy in a recession, many students were forced to come up with cheaper way to show their sweethearts that they cared.

"I just wanted to do something that was spontaneous and would make her laugh," Jones said.

Jones and Abrams had their Valentine's Day dinner at Fazoli's and attended a showing of "Dear John" later that evening.

Fellow senior Jake Clark also got creative with the gift for his girlfriend, junior Emily McGuire. He gathered pictures of McGuire and him and put them on a soccer ball poster.

Valentine's Day is advertised as a big day where everyone should exchange gifts and chocolate, but for students who were working part- time jobs or relying on allowances to pay for their extracurricular purchases, it was difficult to think of inexpensive ways to show their appreciation.

Student Council helped out by selling carnations in the cafeterias during lunch. This way even if students did not celebrate with a significant other, they could send their friends white carnations for friendship. Students could buy pink carnations for their crushes or red ones for their boyfriend or girlfriend. The carnations sold for a dollar each or $10 for a dozen.

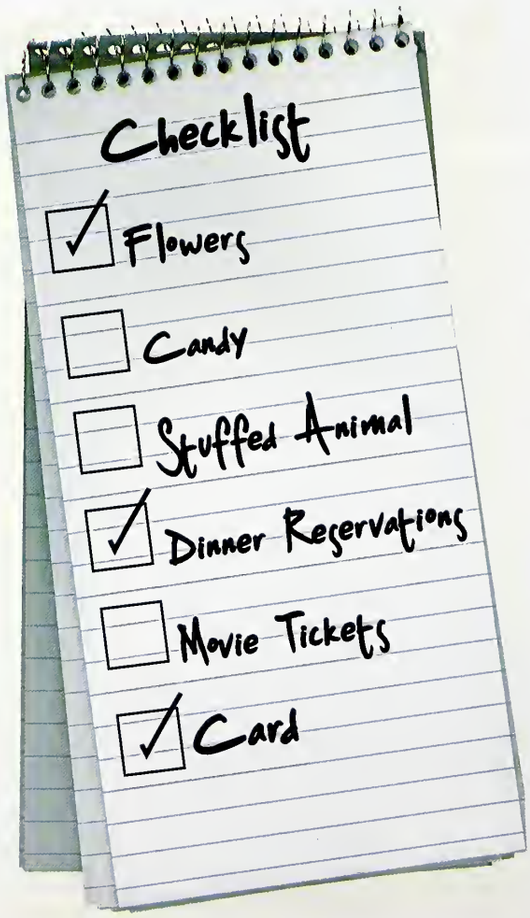
If students weren't interested in flowers they could have sent candy grams. It only cost $1 to put a message on a card and have it delivered along with a sucker to the person's first period class.

Junior Rona Sanders and her boyfriend took a trip to Walmart and picked out small gifts for each other.

"It was a fun way for us to spend time together," Sanders said.

"I feel like Valentine's Day is for older people, I mean if you're in a relationship it's fun but to me it was just another day," senior Emily Christine Hernandez said. "I went to the movies and saw "Valentine's Day" with my friends."

Regardless of whether students had elaborate plans or stayed at home for the day, many celebrated by showing their loved one's how much they appreciated them.



Senior Jake Clark and his girlfriend, junior Emily McGuire celebrated a low key Valentine's Day. "I put a bunch of photos of us on a cardboard soccer ball poster that had my name and jersey number," Clark said. They went out to eat for breakfast, lunch and dinner and then finished the day seeing the movie Valentine's Day.

Junior Emily Abrams was surprised with a drawer full of 72 bananas and a stuffed monkey. "I go bananas for you," senior Erik Jones said. The couple had dinner at Fazoli's and saw Dear John to celebrate their Valentine's Day.

Chick's Flicks

Valentine's Day

The plot of "Valentine's Day" took viewers through the lives of several couples dealing with the pressure of the holiday. Through break- ups and make- ups the film provided a lot of comedic relief by using odd scenarios and some hysterical dance moves from singer/actress Taylor Swift. Jessica Alba, Jamie Foxx, Anne Hathaway and Ashton Kutcher were also part of the cast.

Dear John

Nicholas Sparks, author of "The Notebook" and several other love stories, did it again. "Dear John" was a story of two young lovers from North Carolina who met before John, played by Channing Tatum, must return overseas. The two write letters to each other after but when the attack on September 11th occurred their relationship was put to the test. Although the ending didn't answer the question of if they ended up together it was certainly a tear jerker.

When In Rome

Beth, played by Kristen Bell, had an unfortunate relationship with love and luck. Upon her trip to Rome she stole coins out of the fountain of love. Little did she know that she would be encountered by various men that created hilarious situations. The movie was both fun and romantic as Beth continued on her quest for "the one."

We've been together since March 5, 2009.

What did you do to celebrate your one year?
He blindfolded me and drove me to his house and there was a candlelit dinner with rose petals everywhere.

What do you like most about each other?
She treats me really well.
He does a lot of sweet things for me.

What did you get each other for Valentine's Day?
I got her a bouncy ball that was blue with glitter in it.
I bought a picture frame and decorated it for him.

Valentine's Day Fast Facts

Worldwide, over 50 million roses are given for Valentine's Day each year.

About 3 percent of pet owners will give Valentine's Day gifts to their pets.

Richard Cadbury invented the first Valentine's Day candy box in the late 1800s.

About 1 billion Valentine's Day cards are exchanged in the US each year. That's the largest seasonal card-sending occasion of the year, next to Christmas.

With six seniors gone and a second-year coach, the boys basketball team rebuilds from the bottom up with young players

STARTING OVER

Losing six key seniors for some teams can be devastating for the team's success. For the boys basketball team, the graduation of the seniors wasn't the end, it was only a new beginning.

The Warriors left the previous season in the dust and looked ahead to a younger team that was willing to learn. They had two seniors, a positive attitude and a competitive mind set.

"Last season was a season of getting to know my players with it being my first year as their coach," head coach Greg Graham said. "This year's team had more chemistry and better overall work ethic."

With the younger players trying to prove themselves to the coaches, the two seniors tried to be role models for their teammates.

"We as seniors had to take the father role," senior Nick Turner said. "We had to help the younger players mature on and off the court."

With the seniors making their presence known, a new name surfaced as one of the key players: Devin Davis. Davis was a 6'6" freshman and was the first freshman to be a starter since Walter Offutt during the 2005-2006 season. He not only stood out to spectators but also his teammates.

"As a freshman he understood the game," junior Bennie Bertram said. "He's versatile, a good shooter, and now all he needs to do is get stronger and he has the potential to be a real special player."

When told that he would be starting, Davis had his doubts.

"At first I was nervous," Davis said. "But once I knew my team was supporting me I had nothing to worry about."

Another standout player for the Warriors was Bertram. He was the only junior on the team that had previous varsity experience.

"As a junior I had to play like a senior and become a leader on the floor," Bertram said. "I had big shoes to fill and I had to make a name for myself."

With a young team and a goal that seemed almost unreachable at the beginning of the season, the boys never quit. And ultimately accomplished their goal.

"Our expectation was to win at least 13 games this year and we exceeded that by two games," Graham said. "To me, the season was a success."

Now the team can look nowhere but up.

"I am excited about our future at Warren," Graham said. "If we continue to develop our skills then we should be a very competitive team year in and year out."

"With me being one of the two seniors I knew I was going to have to step up big to take that leadership role."
- Willie Rhodes, 12

"I think the season went well, even though it started off shaky. I think the boys did a good job." - Shandes Hoosier, 12

"The boys surprised me with their season. I had my doubts, but overall I'm proud of them." - India Crawford, 11

HEY HEY WHAT DO YA SAY!

Senior cheerleaders are always special, from their high energy and outstanding toe touches, to their great leadership

"I always loved coming out and cheering for the school. I enjoyed doing what I did best." - Sarah Bruno, 12

For many cheerleaders their senior year is the most important. It's the year when they finally become the leaders of the squad, enjoy their last games as a cheerleader, and are fortunate enough to be a part of a state championship team.

As most cheerleaders come in as freshman, their main goal is to become the squad leader by their senior year. Becoming a leader is one thing that every cheerleader works towards.

Senior cheerleaders show the younger cheerleaders the ropes and help them improve.

"It's always nice to have strong seniors that give structure to a program," Coach Jennifer Brooks said.

With the stands packed with Warrior fans dressed in black and gold from head to toe, Friday night games are always filled with fun and excitement for all Warriors, including the cheerleaders.

"Even though we're suppose to give energy to the crowd, they're always the ones to hype us up," senior Alisha Hurley said.

Everyone knows that when the team is down and the crowd isn't up and energetic, fans call on our cheerleaders to get the team moving and the crowd pumped up.

Not all cheerleaders can say that during their senior year they were a part of a state championship football team.

Although they were not playing on the football field, the cheerleaders could still feel the excitement of being state winners, which is something that they will never forget.

"The energy at state was crazy," junior Caitlyn Burke said. "My voice was scratchy for a least a week."

These memories are not something that only the seniors will cherish, but they will stay

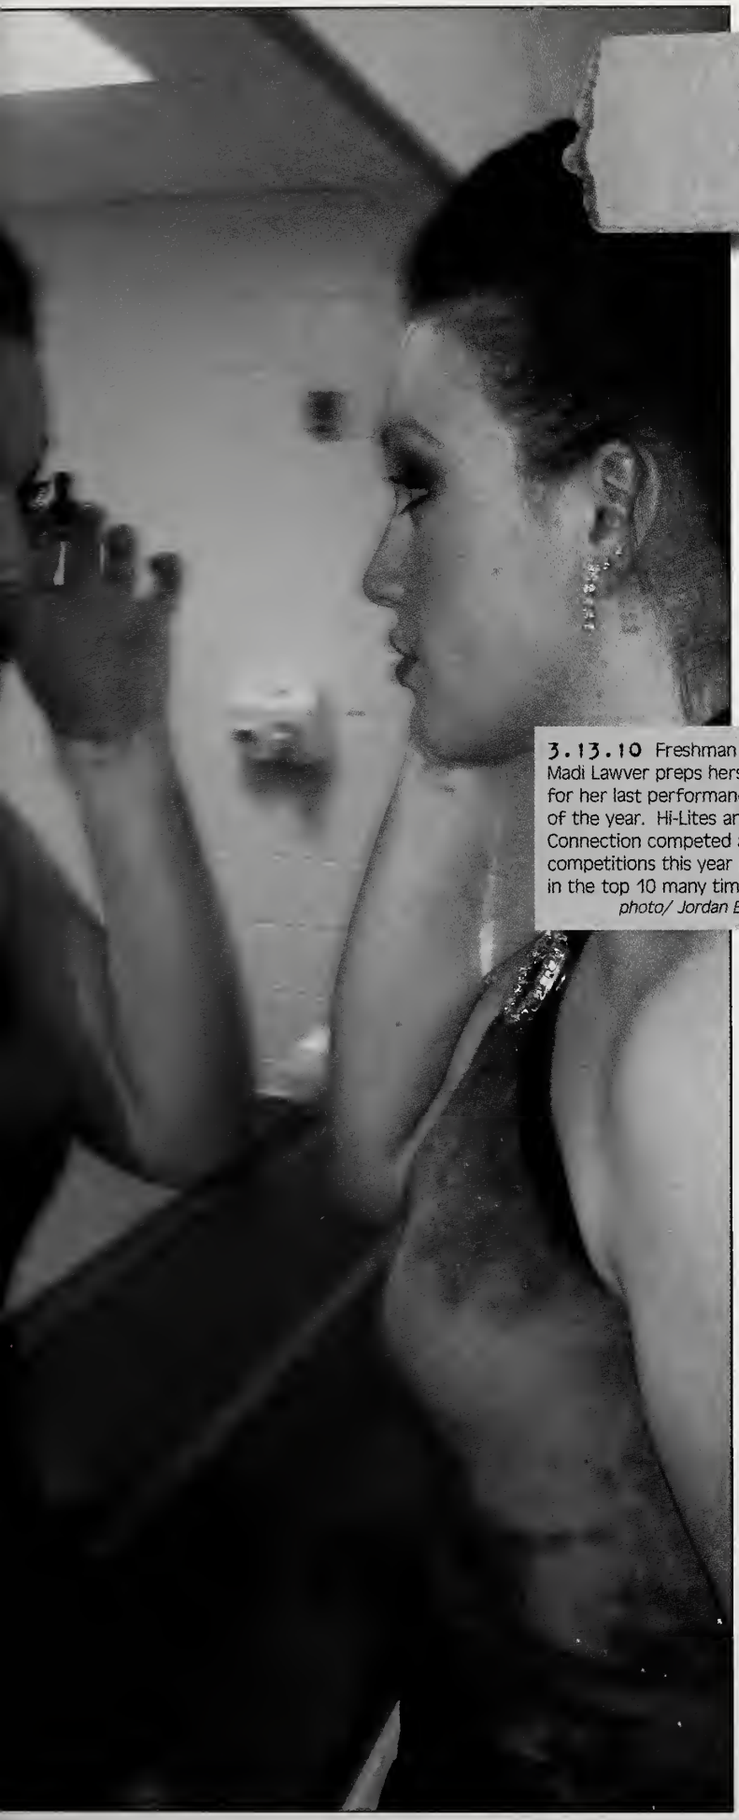
Popular TV show draws from choir experiences



3.13.10 Freshman Madi Lawver preps herself for her last performance of the year. Hi-Lites and Connection competed at four competitions this year placing in the top 10 many times.

Waking up at 4 a.m., spending an hour on a bitter cold bus, and then prancing around a stage at 8:30 in the morning. These are the things Fox's "Glee" forgets to portray in their TV show. "Glee's" premiere introduced people to the world of high school show choirs.

"Glee" premiered Sept. 9, 2009, just before choir tryouts were scheduled to take place. Show choir was not as popular in the general public eye until "Glee." The popularity of the show increased the awareness of show choir and influenced the number of students who auditioned.

"'Glee' emphasized what show choir already was; it never changed show choir," first-year head choir director Dustin Podgorski said.

Even though freshman Madi Lawver had been in a choir for nine years, including the all-girls Honors Choir at Creston Middle School, she had never heard of show choir until she watched "Glee."

"'Glee's' take on the realities of show choir got me interested in auditioning for show choir in high school," Lawver said.

Connection, Hi-Lites and Vivace are the three show choirs offered at Warren. Lawver auditioned for the all-girls advanced choir, Hi-Lites.

It is very rare for freshmen to be put into a show choir, so Lawver was made an alternate in Hi-Lites. Lawver was one of only five freshmen in an advanced show choir.

"I wasn't expecting to make it when I tried out, but I love being in Hi-Lites," Lawver said. "'Glee' influenced me to put myself out there, and it was one of the best decisions I've ever made."

Ryan Murphy, former Warrior and creator of "Glee," was inspired to create the show through his very own experiences in Connection.

Connection inspired Murphy to create a series about show choir, and in return, his show inspired Lawver to audition for a show choir.

"'Glee' encouraged me to chase after my dreams and take pride in doing what I love," Lawver said.

"Seeing all the characters perform in Glee inspired me to pursue my own passion for music and performing."

A SEASON TO REMEMBER

It was not the best season the Warriors had hoped for, but it was definitely one of the most memorable

"One swim practice can leave you so exhausted," senior Haley Dickey explained. After it's over you're ready to go home o be alone."

This year the Warrior's swim team ad 71 of these exhausting practices. However, on many occasions, the Warriors stayed together after practice and id everything, but go home alone.

These occasions were spent building he team's chemistry. The swim season onsisted of bonding among the guys and irls like never before and went farther han the traditional biting of the pineapple efore every meet for the guys as a way of ood luck.

Most of the unity that occurred was nvisible to the eyes of outsiders. This is ecause the unity was behind the doors f the locker room and the houses of the wimmers.

Behind those doors, the guys ntertained each other with wrestling noves, food, and games. After engaging n the WWE moves and eating spaghetti, he boys would sit down and enjoy Xbox 60.

"We love to play Halo," sophomore Patrick Jones said. "And after (junior) oseph Brummett beat everybody, we would go ahead and put in Call of Duty to continue the fun."

The girls enjoyed each other's company as well. Their time was not only spent eating, joking and laughing, but also volunteering in community service. The girls team made blankets for the Julian Center, a shelter for domestic abused women and children.

Together, both the girls and guys united to share happiness, meals, and even razor blades. The girls shaved their legs, back, and arms while the guys shaved their legs and head to demonstrate the team's cohesiveness.

"The whole team is definitely closer this year," senior Tess Walker stated. "When they sang happy birthday to me as I approached the end of the pool at a swim meet, I realize how close we were."

With the close bond they acquired on their down time, the guys were able to win their first invitational meet ever this season.

The girls 200 free relay squad consisting of sophomore Allison Chorpenning, senior Dickey, sophomore Monica Mendez and junior Tori Miles broke their own record by one second.

"Even though we didn't finish as high as we hoped we forced eachother to practice hard, and in the process we all became a family," Dicky said.

Life of a Shark

Students waited in their classroom anxiously to know what was happening next. The bucket opened and the stench of fish filled the air. Each group was assigned one shark to examine.

"The shark didn't smell unless you clipped the liver, then the oils left a horrible stench," junior Shawna Polston said.

The sharp scalpel touched the slick skin and sliced into the shark. Students tried to make sure not to cut too deep.

"The shark has very thick skin to cut through," junior Connor McCarty said.

The dog fish, a species of shark, was a great specimen to observe when dissecting because the internal organs were easy to see. The structure helped give an idea as to what goes on inside a body.

"It never crossed my mind how the shark felt since the shark was dead," senior Allen Kieta said. "I just wanted to split it open and see what was inside."

"The shark was probably thinking why me!" biology teacher Christine Schneider said.

Students objective when dissecting the sharks was to learn classifications of fish. Students also learned how the reproductive system works, what the stomach looked like and what the shark had eaten that day.

"I learned that pregnant sharks keep their babies in sacs that hang off like tree limbs," Polston said.

Students had been dissecting the whole year in advanced Zoology and advanced Marine Biology for college prep courses. The zoology and marine biology classes are based on comparative anatomy.

Whether it was a pig, rabbit, spider or a star fish, students were learning the system, structure, and how the body works.

Every year there are discussions and conflict on whether or not students should dissect an animal or organ. To accommodate those students who prefer not to dissect, students were directed to utilize online resources.

Online there are programs that allow students to dissect an animal or organ without physically using hands.

"At first I thought that it wasn't fair for the shark to get dissected, but afterwards I got used to it," Polston said.

Although dissecting seemed gross, slimy and maybe a little scary, it was well worth the experience at the end of the dissection.

"I personally enjoyed dissecting the shark and would probably dissect it again," McCarty said.

BRINGING IT BACK HOME

Coming off one of the best seasons the Warrior Nation has ever seen there was only one way to end it

There was only one thing going through the minds of the Lady Warriors as the post season kept nearing closer and closer, and that was sectional champions. It had been a long time waiting, but finally the Lady Warriors would find out how it feels to be a champion.

The "Swagg Team" team as they came to be known as was coming off one of the best season they have had in a long time losing just four games all season. With this momentum the Lady Warriors looked to do something that had not been seen in the Warrior Nation for 19 years.

The sectional pool for the Lady Warriors was no stroll in the park. In order to have a chance at holding the sectional trophy they would have to take on two strong MIC teams.

In game one the Warriors took on Arlington at Broad Ripple High School. Looking good every quarter the Warriors steam rolled their way through the Golden Nights out scoring them 60-41.

Not taking this win for granted the Warriors looked to continue the streak into round two where an even tougher opponent was waiting.

On to game two, the Lady Warriors looked to take on the North Central Panthers. Led by senior Brandi McKinney who scored 15 points, they were able to defeat the Panthers for a second time this season with a final score of 53-37.

With this win it would seal the deal, and put the Lady Warriors into the sectional championship game against Lawrence North.

In the big games, you need people to step up to make the big plays.

Playing one of her best games of the season was Malone who shot a hundred percent from the line and scored a total of 17 points throughout the game. Malone combined with senior Jordan Barton to come away with 19 total rebounds.

With everyone stepping up and coming together for a common goal, the Lady Warriors were able to take down the Lawrence North Wildcats 53-37. Following the final buzzer came a shower of shrieks from the Warrior sideline.

Everyone was jumping, and shouting as the "Swagg Team" brought home the sectional trophy for the first time in 19 years, and had advanced into regionals.

"It felt great to be the first team in 19 years to win sectionals," senior Taylor Ford said. "It felt like a history in the making type moments."

Food Connects New Languages

Learning cultures one celebration at a time

The smell of food and the sound of laughter filled the room. Excitement rose immediately as the remaining members filed in and friends got reunited. With fun events planned, everyone was anxious to get the ball rolling.

Every year, German Club holds an annual Erntedankfest, where they give thanks for all that they are grateful for. Erntedankfest is solely celebrated in German-speaking countries as a thanksgiving celebration. However, it is not considered a holiday.

"Erntedankfest is celebrated only in some areas of Germany and is all about being thankful for the harvest," Ms. Angie Folco said.

The celebration was one of the ways the foreign language department engaged students in the culture and background of the language they were learning. With a hands-on understanding, it set the students up for better success.

"Erntedankfest was celebrated to compare Thanksgiving here and in Germany. The reasons, customs and foods are much different," Folco said.

German club students were extremely excited to start the planned activities, but before they began, German Club president Rebecca Lefevers read a short paragraph explaining their significance to Erntedankfest.

"The dishes were common dishes for an authentic German thanksgiving," Lefevers said. "The pumpkin carving was an entertaining activity that gave everyone a chance to participate and pumpkins are a good thanksgiving decoration to have around."

The chance to explore new German vocabulary was introduced to the students. Gabby Bentson and Krystal West got to work deciphering the German carving instructions so they could correctly decorate their white pumpkin.

"I thought that since I know German, translating the instructions would be easy, but I had to use the dictionary for every word except 'a'," Bentson said. "I had fun though, and I learned some new

THE FINAL FOUR

With a new coach, the wrestling team dominated the mats ending with four state representatives and two state champions

After weeks of intense practicing and tough matches throughout the season, the four wrestling finalists were ready for the chance to become state champions.

These four wrestlers were making history on the mats, becoming the first four wrestlers all going to state since 2000. For two of the wrestlers this would be their first time stepping onto a state mat, but the other two earned another chance to prove why they deserved to be at state again.

Senior Josh Williams, 135 pounds, and junior Kyle White, heavy weight, had never been to state before, but this year was their chance to prove why they deserved to be there.

Even though they were both eliminated in the first round, they still went further than they had ever gone before in their wrestling career.

"Finally going to state felt great because this has been one of my biggest goals since freshman year," Williams said.

Seniors Michael Johnson-Jones and Brandon Wright, the other two wrestlers, were accustomed to the feeling of going to Conseco, but it felt different going this time.

"This year it was different for me because this was my last year to leave a mark on Indiana wrestling," Wright said.

Wright faced the Indian Creek 125-pound wrestler in the state finals winning his second state championship with a score of 9-2 finishing his season off with a 33-2 record.

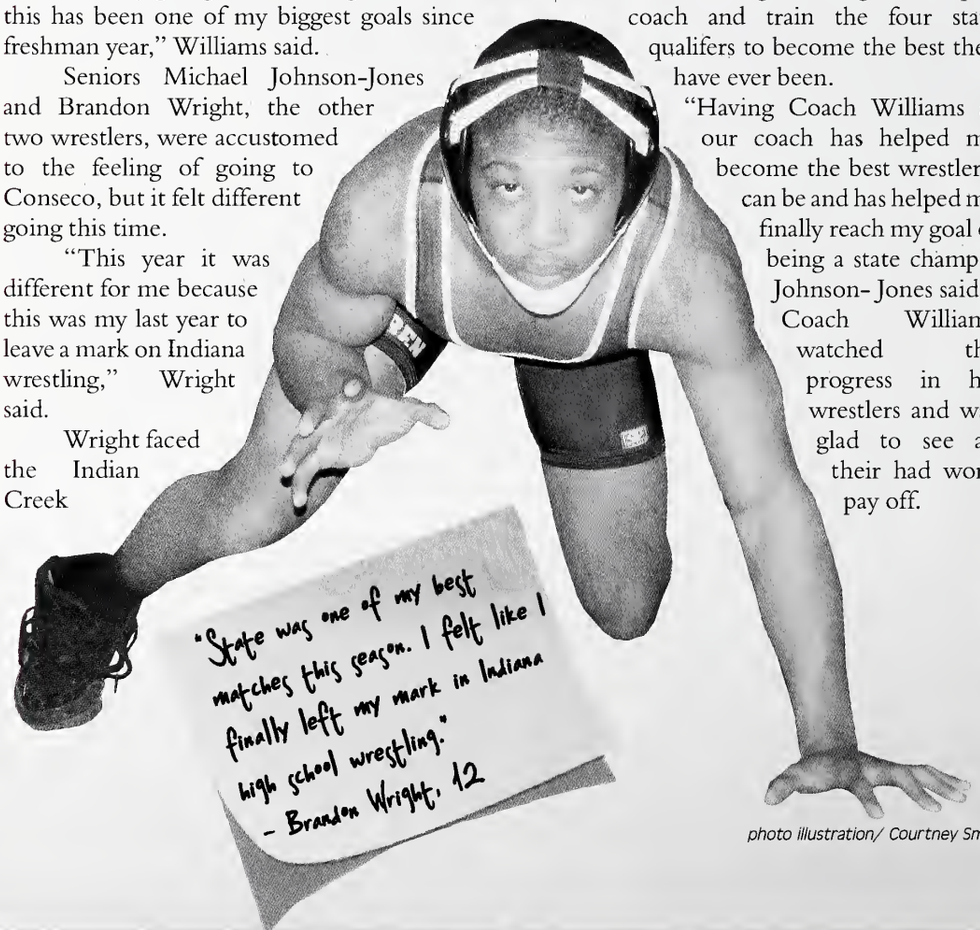
Johnson-Jones took the state title for the 189 pound weight class with a match against undefeated Delphi wrestler Braden Atwood, who was also Johnson-Jones' only loss all year. The match came down to an over time take down by Johnson-Jones making the score 4-2 and finished his season with a 43-1 record.

The accomplishments of these two wrestlers were also a first in Warren history. Never before had two state qualifiers come back to win individual state championships.

With a new head coach, the Warren wrestling program had taken a change in the right direction. Coach Danny Williams who is a two time Indiana state champion and a Warren Central alummi himself, along with the rest of the wrestling coaching staff helped coach and train the four state qualifers to become the best they have ever been.

"Having Coach Williams as our coach has helped me become the best wrestler I can be and has helped me finally reach my goal of being a state champ," Johnson- Jones said.

Coach Williams watched the progress in his wrestlers and was glad to see all their had work pay off.



"State was one of my best matches this season. I felt like I finally left my mark in Indiana high school wrestling."

A Life Experience

Starting a new job is always fun and exciting. Employees never really know what to expect or what's going to happen. They learn new things, meet new people, and learn a lot about themselves.

For senior Lorena Stevenson, working at the Warren Early Childhood Center was all that and more. For her, it was a dream-come-true.

The Early Childhood Education program gives students real life experience working with and educating children. Students combine classroom instruction with mentor experiences to gain the knowledge needed to get a job in children's education.

"As soon as I heard about this class I knew it was something I'd be interested in," Stevenson said.

She had always enjoyed being around children and liked to take the leadership role.

Stevenson traveled to the Warren Early Childhood Center Tuesday through Friday, and taught a class twice a week. While there, she got hands-on experience working with children ages 3-5, including special needs kids.

"Being in front of a class and teaching the kids is so much fun," Stevenson said. "And no matter what kind of mood I'm in, as soon as I get to the center the kids always make me smile," Stevenson said.

Not only has the ECC taught Stevenson to work hands on, it has also helped her over come her fear of working with special needs kids.

"When I first started, I was kind of nervous about working with special needs children," Stevenson said, "But I've learned that they aren't any different from all the other students."

Working with the children at the WECC has taught her that it takes more than just "loving kids" to be able to work with them. It takes patience, a sense of humor, responsibility and an open mind.

"My ultimate goal is to become a preschool teacher and open up a school," Stevenson said.

She is working hard and giving it her all to bring her closer to her dream of being a teacher.

The class gives students real world job experience that most students would not have when they graduate. This experience will give Stevenson a jump ahead of others trying to get a job in the children's education field.

In addition to all the experiences she has gained from this class, she also earned nine credits at Ivy Tech that will apply directly towards a degree in ECE.

Stevenson hopes to go to Ball State and continue to work towards accomplishing her dream.

BACK TO THE BASICS

With a young team, the Warriors coaching staff decides to take it back to the fundamentals to get technically sound before sectionals hit

It was a rocky start to what was supposed to be a great season for the Warriors baseball team. Midway through the season with a record of 2-10-1, the Warriors couldn't wait to turn the calendar to the month of May where sectionals was in sight.

The baseball team was for the most part a young team, and that meant back to the basics. The coaching staff decided to focus more on the fundamentals of the game, and also on the importance of practicing hard. Practice translated into how they played during a game.

"Last year we had a lot of freshmen, and the idea was that it was just cool to come out on the field and play ball. But now just playing isn't good enough, we got to come out and play to win," Coach Brian Murphy said. "Practice has changed the way we played games."

Focusing on the basics, the Warriors hoped that this mind set would put them where they needed to be when sectionals rolled around. One thing that needed to be in top shape to even give them a chance at winning was pitching.

"You can always improve on pitching," Coach Murphy said.

Pitching alone won't win a game though. Consistency is key, and it lacked a little this season. The problem was every player stepped up one time or another this season, but it was in spurts and not consistently. It takes nine people to win a game, not just one.

"It's consistency we've got to work on," Coach Murphy said. "But if everyone were always consistent we wouldn't have a team, they'd all be in the major leagues."

With the new focus, the baseball team could reach new heights and make it out of their sectional, even with top ranked Cathedral Irish in it.

NEW COACH, NEW GIRLS, NEW TEAM

The girls softball team undergoes renovation after Coach Kim Richards and several new players join the team

In Kimberly Richards first year as softball head coach, it hasn't been easy, but thanks to some unlikely heroes, the young lady Warriors were starting to get on track.

Through the first month of the season, coach Richards and her team stumbled out to a 1-11 start, and as the halfway point of the season approached, the girls were looking to prove they were a lot better than what their record showed.

On April 28 the girls hosted Pike. Behind an impressive pitching performance from sophomore Alyssa Cope, the Warriors got the 11-8 win over the Red Devils. In Warren's next game, Cope got the win again, but the hero this time was freshman Jordan See, who delivered a clutch game-winning hit to give the girls a 4-3 win over Greenfield.

In the girls' next game, they looked to extend their winning streak to three against the Center Grove Trojans, but fell short in a 14-2 loss. However, the girls would not stay down long.

Warren's next game was a first-round match up in the Marion County Tournament against Lawrence Central. Again, the Lady Warriors got a win from Cope, who was supported by a 2-run home run by junior Olivia Bauer. The homer from Bauer would prove to be the difference as the girls would hold on for an 8-7 win and advance on to the quarterfinals. There, Warren's opponent was Decatur Central. The girls lost 10-3, eliminating them from the tournament, but the girls remained confident.

The next game was against the Panthers of North Central. Warren played well, but could not hold off Panthers' standout Hannah Pratt. Pratt, who went an outstanding 5-for-5, led the Panthers over the Warriors, 13-5. In the girls' next game, they got another outstanding pitching performance, but fell short to Decatur Central by a final score of 2-1.

The girls held a 4-16 record towards the end of the season, but played well, and improved each game. With only four games left in their season, the girls wanted to play well before heading into postseason play. With plenty of young talent, Coach Richards believed the team would go far.

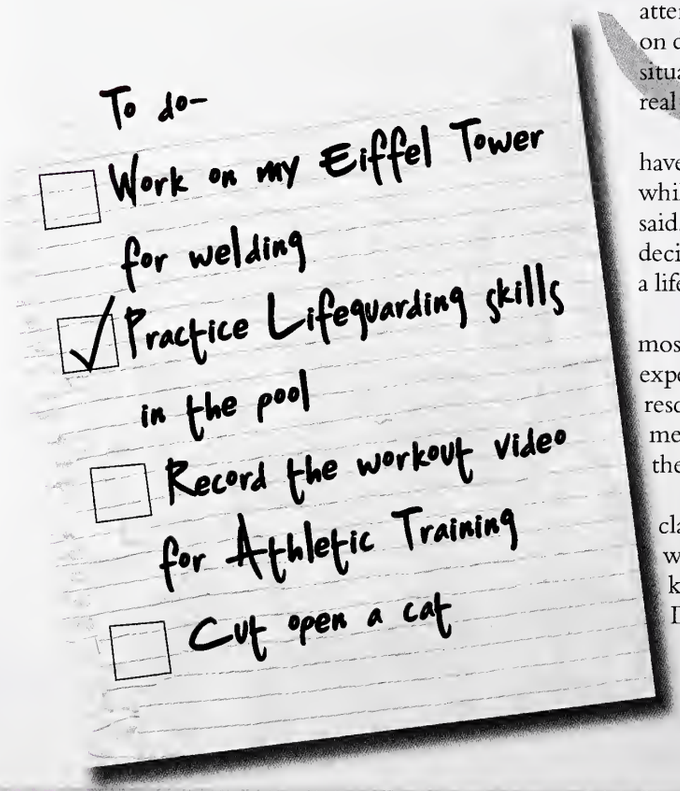
How To Save A Life



Students in Ms. Jane Crooke's fifth period Lifeguard Training class have learned a lot about what it takes to be a lifeguard. They did everything from practicing CPR on mannequins to actually practicing rescue techniques in the pool with their classmates.

Lifeguards have to always pay attention and be on the lookout while on duty. How well they react to different situations could mean life or death in a real scenario.

"In this class one of the things I have learned is how to act professionally while on duty," junior Patrick Jones said. "The way I act and how I react can decide how well I could potentially save a life."

One of the things students liked most about this class was the hands-on experience they got when learning the rescue methods. Students learned rescue methods like how to get people out of the pool safely.

"The part I liked most about the class was how hands-on I got to be when learning everything I needed to know about being a lifeguard," junior Donny Graham said.

Not only were students taught how to perform different rescue techniques like active and passive rescuing, they also learned how to stay calm and mentally prepared in case of an emergency.

"I have learned how to remain calm and not freak out so I can properly save someone in the pool," Jones said.

The training they received does not only have to be used in being a lifeguard. Students could use the skills they have been taught for other jobs that require them to have some background in rescuing.

"If I ultimately don't get a job as a lifeguard, I can always put on a resume that I am CPR and First Aid certified to have a better chance of getting a job," junior Anna Vante said.

The Lifeguard Training class prepared students to be the best lifeguard they can be. Many students went on to use their training at local pools over the summer and some planned to use their training in the Navy or another branch of the military.

"I am going into the Navy after high school," Vante said. "I need to be properly trained in lifeguarding to be successful."

SENIOR PLAYERS MAKE WAY FOR NEW TALENT

As the girls tennis team prepares to lose three key seniors, they focus on building up new talents

The girls tennis team produced a season of ups and downs. While the team managed a 3-11 record for the year, the scoreboard doesn't accurately represent the strides that the girls made.

The team featured only three varsity seniors, four-year players Larissa Pittman and Erin McAllen, as well as Jordan Barton, who returned from an extended hiatus from the court, also frequently had a trio of freshmen penciled into the starting roster, Katherine Jones, Lauren McAllen and Brittany Schmidt.

In short, it was a spring campaign of gaining court IQ and developing the underclassmen to inherit the team that the seniors leave behind. And learn they did. The team played with multiple starting rosters in order to find what the best match ups will be for the squad's army of young guns in seasons to come.

The girls showed their mettle when they dropped the Speedway Sparkplugs in a 4-1 drubbing toward the end of the season, during which Pittman put on a clinic for her Speedway opponent. The freshmen stepped up to secure their own victories, and the second doubles team of McAllen and junior Jessica Newman rammed home a major upset of the 'Plugs to seal the victory.

However, the year ended prematurely for the Lady Warriors during a 1-4 setback in the opening round of the sectional tournament to the Guerin Catholic Eagles, a similar close of season to that of the boys, who were blanked by the Eagles in October.

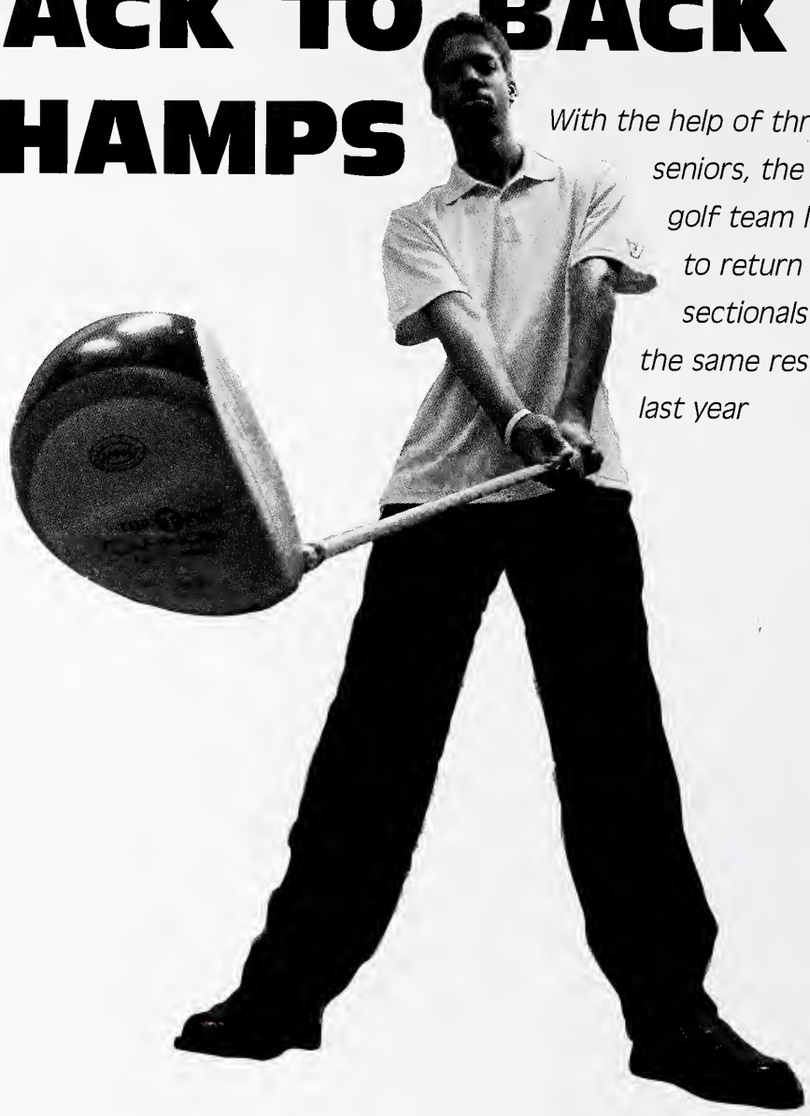
BACK TO BACK CHAMPS

With the help of three key seniors, the boys golf team looked to return to sectionals and get the same result as last year



It's tough to losing seniors, especially on a team where only five people make up the teams score. Cody Risser was the number one golfer last year for the Warriors, dominating the competition, but now that he was gone he has past the torch on to the new three seniors.

Connor Worley, Matt Spicuzza, and Allen Kieta were the new stars on the team. All three have been on the team every year of their high school career, and for Matt Spicuzza, all four of those years he was on varsity.

Last year was one of the golf teams' best seasons ever recorded, and a lot of the credit goes to these three. All three have been playing since they were kids, and knew how to get low scores. The kind of scores needed to win a sectional championship.

The team had came out hard everyday to practice to further better themselves all around in their game. The Warriors came up a bit short in five out of the six invitationals that they entered though. In three of the tournaments, the team got second out of 12 teams. The team was dominating in the regular season though. Going 9-2-1, with most of the games being decided by only a couple points.

Towards the end of the season, the scores for the team's matches started to get a little higher, averaging 163 points a match instead of 155, which was what they were shooting at the start of the season. The Warriors looked to repeat their sectional run they had last year when they took the sectional by storm.

The team worked on focusing this season, and it paid off. Their hard work moved them to where they needed to be when sectionals rolled around.

Passion for Art

Art forms inspire beyond a class credit

Art can be brought into a person's life in many ways- by their peers, museums and sometimes even TV. But for senior Tyler Martin art was brought into his life simply because he needed a credit.

Martin's passion for art began his sophomore year when he took ceramics. Going into ceramics Martin never imagined he'd fall in love with art.

In the beginning his only reason for taking the class was to gain a Fine Arts Credit for an Academic Honors Diploma. But after a semester in ceramics, he realized this was more than just a class.

Two years later, his love with art has grown stronger, he's become more dedicated to it, and constantly worked on it. As a senior, he was the vice-president of the National Art Honor Society (NAHS) and spent a lot of his time working on art.

"There is always something to be said for creativity, and ceramics has definitely helped build my creativity," Martin said.

In the art show, Martin submitted a total of 37 pieces. Martin committed his entire year to all his pieces. To ensure each piece was unique in its own way, he made sure they all expressed his creativity, emotion and artistic opinion.

"He is an incredible guy with clear goals," advisor of NAHS Dr. Sally Rice exclaimed.

"The art show not only gives our best students exposure to the rest of the school, but it also promotes our classes to students that might be interested in taking an art class in the future," Media Arts teacher Jeff Bowles said.

In addition to his work in the art show, Martin also competed in the 57th Annual Indiana Junior League. The competition is held annually for Latin students to compete in various academic, artistic and creative competitions based off of the Latin language and Roman culture.

Martin entered a water fountain sculpture and won first place in the competition.

"There is always something to be said for creativity and ceramics has definitely helped build my creativity."

Life Of A Nurse...

"I never thought I would be able to have my future planned out ahead of me and know exactly who I am going to be until I was introduced to Health Career and Medical Terminology," junior Casey Parks said.

The Health Care Careers were a core 40 elective. The careers class covered every medical career from a therapist, speech therapist, doctor and pharmacist.

"A lot of students learned about careers they didn't even know exist," instructor Ms. Gretchen Andrews said.

"Health Careers focused on a certain type of career that suited you," Parks said. "The opportunities I received helped me explore other options in different medical fields."

If students were interested in going into a health care profession, the class medical terminology gave students a good foundation on the vocabulary they would need to know. Medical terminology was a dual credit with Ivy Tech. It will also transfer to any in-state college. Ms. Andrews and Ms. Cindy Ludwig looked at applications to help students apply for scholarships.

"We are creating a pathway for the students," Ms. Andrews said.

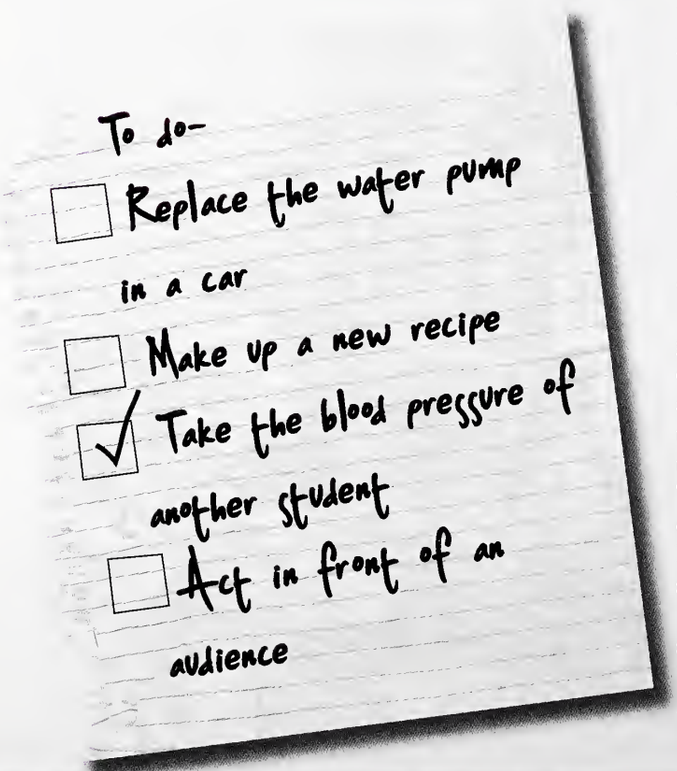
Health Careers was a block class. Each period was counted as a credit and was worth two college credits. Health Careers also dealt with lab work. Students practiced taking the blood pressure of another student and were taught how to measure a heartbeat. Students also took field trips to hospitals to explore medical research.

"I realized that the Health Careers class wasn't just some ordinary class," Parks said. "Not only is it just book work, but is hands- on too. I am constantly doing something and actually learning something that is in my interest."

Advanced Health Careers introduced avenues towards careers in dental assisting, pharmacy tech, personal trainer and physical therapist aid. During the first semester, students were in the lab practicing hands on. During the second semester, students went to hospitals, nursing homes and pharmacies to assist the nurses, getting hands on experience.

"Health Careers helped expose many areas of the medical field so we can get experience that we wouldn't have elsewhere," senior Brittany Garrod said.

"I plan on taking Advanced Health Careers my senior year," Parks said. "There, I'll be in the pharmacy tech program training and working at pharmacies and clinics. After I graduate I'll be able to have a position at a CVS to work as a pharmacy tech. I'll then further my education at IUPUI."



"My goal is to save lives and help people. I want to make a hospital like a home to go to." - Monique Buford, 11

BREAKING A NEWLY STAMPED RECORD

Some records are not meant to be broken. However, that was not the case for the boys track team.

This was the second year in a row where an event record was broken. The previous season, Derrick Spight broke the high jump record jumping 7 feet 1 inch and junior Kris Harley can now be added to this growing list. Harley broke the shot put record, his own record.

The first time the record was broken was on April 16, 2010. Harley originally threw 59 feet 4 inches, which broke a nine-year record that was previously held by Royce Owens. Owens threw 58 feet in 2001.

After breaking the record the first time, Harley was motivated to aim higher.

"I wasn't really proud the first time I broke it," Harley said. "I broke the record, but I lost at the meet."

At the county meet on May 12, Harley surpassed his 59-foot record by throwing 60 feet. And that was the point he felt accomplished.

"I felt like nobody could stop me," Harley said. "After that I knew I had intimidated the other throwers because I broke the record on my first throw of the meet."

Head Coach Dennis McNulty also felt Harley had proven himself.

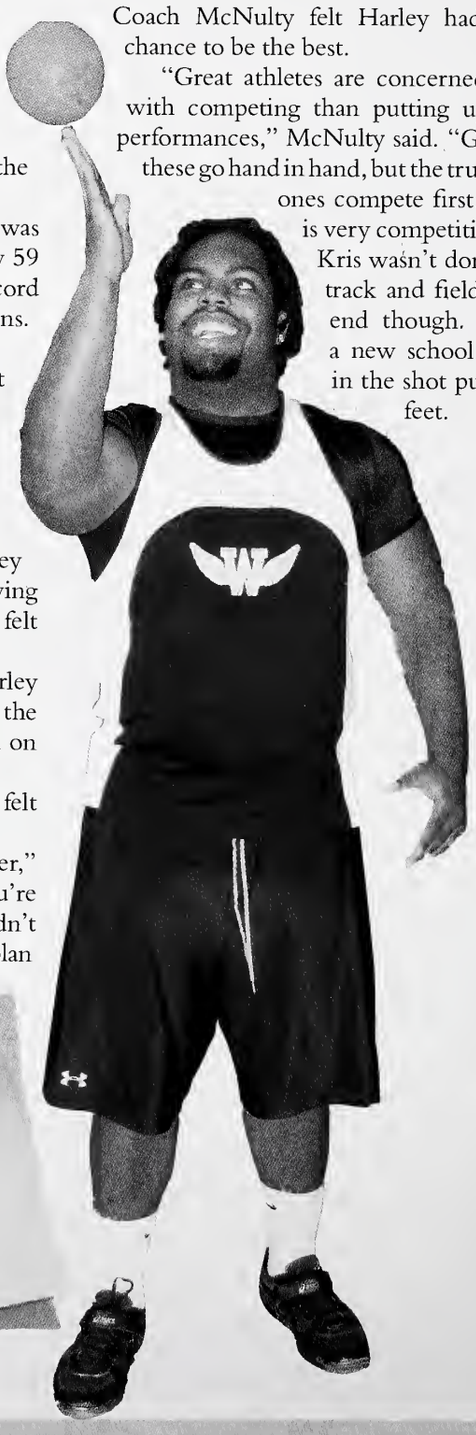
"He is finally a legitimate thrower," McNulty said. "If you throw a 60 footer, you're considered a very good thrower." Harley didn't want to stop at throwing 60 feet. He had a plan for his future.

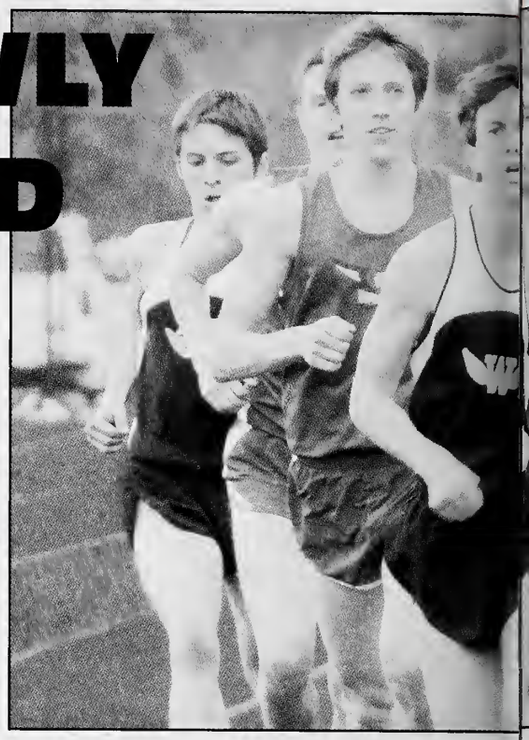
"I'm looking forward to being number one in not only the nation, but the world," Harley said.

Coach McNulty felt Harley had every chance to be the best.

"Great athletes are concerned more with competing than putting up great performances," McNulty said. "Granted, these go hand in hand, but the truly good ones compete first... Kris is very competitive."

Kris wasn't done with track and field at the end though. He set a new school record in the shot put of 62 feet.





"Kris earned the record. He always works hard at what he does and he's dedicated."

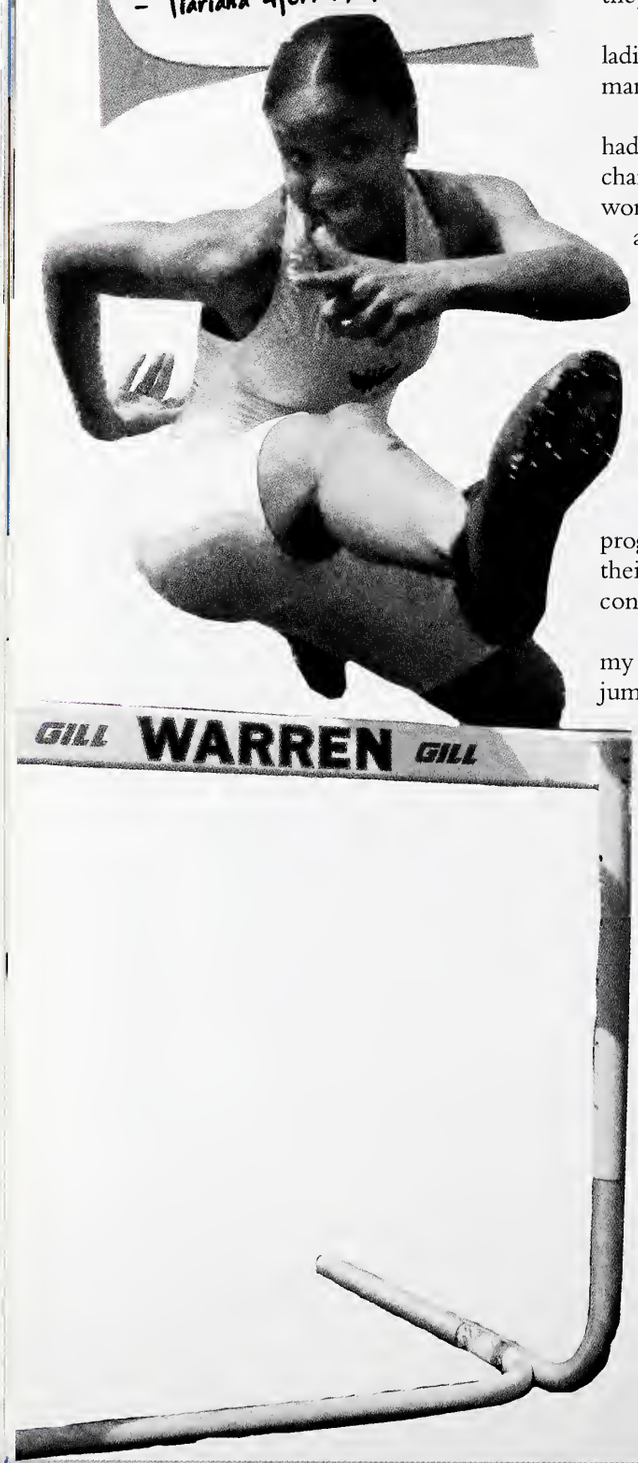
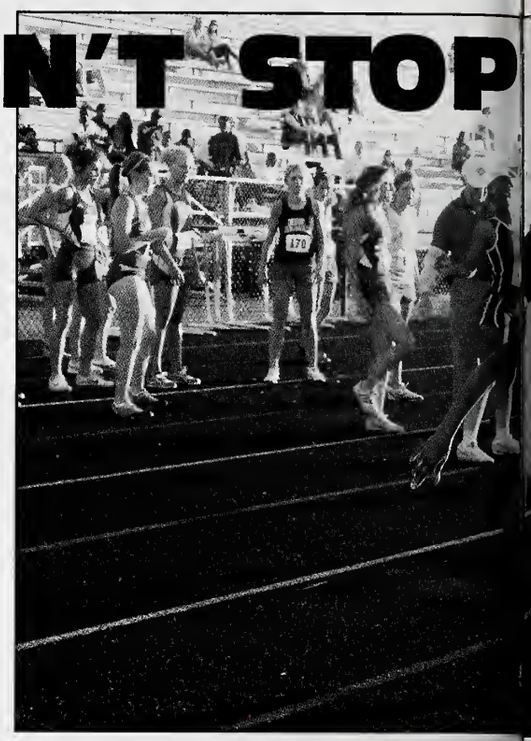
CAN'T STOP, WON'T STOP

Building on a Warrior tradition, the girls track team continues to be the team to beat

"I was scared that I wasn't going to do good at the beginning of the season, but I proved myself and everybody else wrong."
- Tiariana Herron, 12





Every step you take is a step of determination. This is what was encoded into the heads of the girls track team as they raced past their competition.

"These are a group of talented young ladies. I see a bright future for them," team manager Erica Smith said.

With new coaches, the girls' team only had one goal in mind and that was to be state champions. Instead of strenuous summer workouts, the girls still had to undergo fall and winter workouts. With new people progressing on the team everyday, the girls blew past the competition in the Franklin and Penn State Invites. They also beat their rivals, the Lawrence North Wild Cats at MIC.

"There was no competition at MIC," junior Latisha Martin said. "It prepared us for regionals and eventually State."

With a new MIC title and runners progressing everyday, the girls prepared for their sectional race. As the race neared, the girls continue on working hard at their practice.

"I have gotten better during this season, my time got faster and I got taught to long jump," senior Alex Row said.

Upon arriving at sectionals the girls had to stay focused. They got onto the field knowing that the team to beat were their rivals from Lawrence North because they were the only team standing in their way for the State Title.

As the race progressed, the team gave it their all leading them into a victory and allowing them to take home the Sectional trophy. The girls placed first, second, or third at every event during the sectional race.

After the race, the team began to chant "No Doubt," because these are the words to encourage each other for a great job. No Doubt is what all the coaches had for the girls. They didn't doubt the girls' performance, and they knew that they were going to pull out the victory.

"Despite our performance at county we still got a good shot at state." - Breauna Turner, 12

"The girls track team seems like they're doing big things." - Ali Chorpenning, 11

After four long years, what do seniors regret the most?

I wish I had taken different classes

not asking out my crush

I regret playing around so much. I didn't really do anything and now I'm paying the price because I can't go to college

I played sports my freshman year, I should have followed through with that

I didn't get a kool-aid senior shirt. I really missed out on that one...

working a little too hard... and not enjoying my senior year

1 "I thought that I hated science, but now I know that a lot of careers that I want to consider going into require a science background. I feel like I would have liked them if I would have taken them. I was afraid of taking physics, and I took it and actually loved it. I feel like other classes could have been like that too." - Haley Dickey

2 "I regret not using folders. It made finding my homework a nightmare. My papers were a mess, I just shoved them in my backpack and inside my books. If you had seen my backpack, you would totally understand." - Sean Williams

3 "I sort of regret getting a job because it takes up so much of my time. I am very involved in a lot of stuff, and having a job makes that harder. It makes me stay up late and then wake up early to finish my homework. Some days it's just hard to balance it all." -Tyler Kelley

The Answer

We asked tough questions. They gave honest answers.

Q. Who did you admire when you were little?	A. I've always admired my older brother, even though I didn't show it as a kid.	My mom.	I admired my dad because I thought he was the coolest person ever and knew everything.	I always admired my grandmother. She was the best.
Q. Celebrity look-alike?	A. Brad Pitt of course!	Jill Scott, when I'm wearing my 'fro.	With longer hair, people thought I looked like Ashton Kutcher.	I don't think I have one, or I just haven't found one.
Q. Favorite sitcom on TV?	A. The Big Bang Theory.	The Game.	Two and a Half Men.	Two and a Half Men.
Q. What's the best concert you've ever been to?	A. Blink 182!	Day 26!	Kiss' Fairwell Tour.	Chris Daughtry.
Q. Something you're worried about running out of?	A. Time and money.	Lip gloss.	Time. You can have as much money in the world, as long as you use your time correctly.	I'm worried about running out of time before college starts.

- Marines

"My father was a Marine. The United States Marines are physically the toughest of all the services. Plus, they have the swankiest uniforms. They'll set my life straight with hard work and discipline."

Alissa Mills
- Navy

"I joined the Navy to get out of Indiana and to pay for college. I personally thought that it was the best way to go with my life because I get to travel the world, it pays for college, and it gives me a chance to do something different. As a member of the Navy, I want to fly helicopters, which means we go and collect anything that happens to fall in the ocean. By joining the Navy, I can learn how to handle different cultures, different situations, and keeping my mouth shut."

Kyle Parker
- Marines

"I've always wanted to be a Marine since I was five years old. It started off as a father-son thing but I grew to develope my own sense of reasoning. I sought more logic into it and noticed how much it changed my father. I wanted the discipline, the honor, the pride, and what the Marine Corps. has. Honor, courage, and commitment is what they live by, Semper Fidelis "Always Faithful" is their motto. I want that. I want everything the Marine Corps. can give me. Devil dogs, jar heads, leathernecks; I want to be one. I'm too rowdy for a college."

Rondric Rodgers
- Air Force

"I joined the Air Force for discipline, money, and for a steady job. I believe that joining the Air Force is just a new way of living. I want to serve my country for the honor and glory. I am also looking forward to it because I get to fly planes."

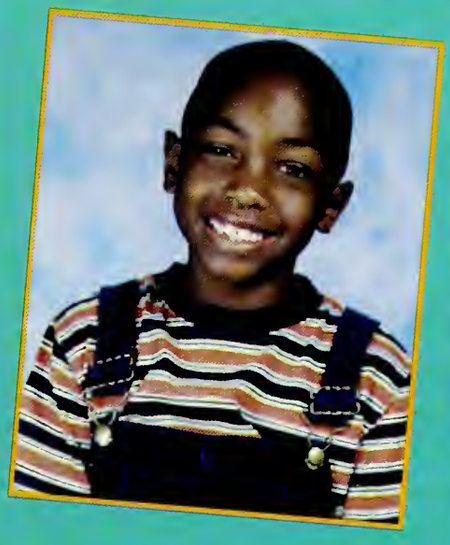
Mike and Josh Murphy

Michael and Joshua, go confidently with each step you take toward your dreams, and always remember I love you!!!

Love, Mom

Michael Miles



Michael, My Heart, My Beloved, My Son:
I LOVE YOU! I AM PROUD OF YOU! I BELIEVE IN YOU!

Going through pictures of you, from the age of 6 months through first grade, is bittersweet. The memories! Once, my helpless baby that depended on me for everything is now a grown man, who is independent! I am overwhelmed by happiness and sadness.

I am sad that my baby from my womb is now an adult! I am happy that the child of my womb left me with wonderful memories and is a mature, responsible, dependable, kind and loving young man.

Sweetheart, I pray each day that "HE" continues to guide your steps. I pray each day you make wise decisions and choices for your life. But, even on those days, that you may fall short of whom you are, I know that my prayers are answered, and God is still God; guiding your steps.

Michael D. Miles, I Love You!
Momma

Robert Champion

Robby,

We could not be more proud of you! You have always set high goals for yourself and always met them, no matter what it took.

It seems just like yesterday I was going to kindergarten with you. You have become a very caring, loving and responsible young man. Your humor always brings a smile to everyone around you.

You will make a wonderful doctor or whatever you choose to be. We have done our job as parents raising you, now it's time to spread your wings and fly!

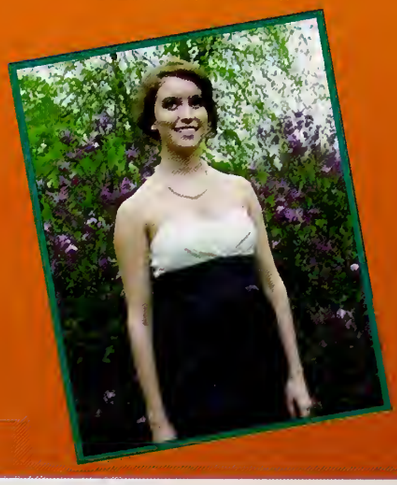
Love,
Dad, Mom, Ashley, Tiffany, Family and Friends

Courtney Vawter

Congratulations Courtney!

You are a shining example of all that a student can be. We are proud of all that you achieved and know that your future will be filled with success. Outstanding job.

Mom and Dad



Forest Davis

Forest,
We are so proud of you,
you are such a wonderful person!
And you have a fantastic sense of humor and a heart as big as all outdoors.
We know that you will go far and have many great adventures in life.

We Love You!
Mom, Dad, and Greigh

Senior Class

To the 2009-2010 Class Officers,
What an honor and privilege it has been working with all six of you this year. You have made our first year as Senior Class co-sponsors both memorable and fun. You will always be remembered as our first set of class officers. Part of what has made this year such a wonderful experience is the diversity that you have brought to your offices. Each of you brings such unique experiences and backgrounds to your jobs. We wish each of you the best in your futures, and we are extremely proud of all you have accomplished. Never forget all you have learned and experienced during your time at Warren Central. Much love and luck to each of you!

Sincerely,
Mr. Kelberer and Mr. Batchelder

Student Council

Dear 2009-2010 Student Council Officers:

What a privilege it has been for me to work with you this year! You are an absolutely amazing group of young leaders, and everything you have done this year shows your selfless attitude, your strength of character, and your endless enthusiasm for Student Council, Warren Central High School, and the local, state, national and international community. You successfully guided the largest Student Council in the nation through 87 community service projects, Homecoming, Winterfest, Prom, faculty breakfasts, the Children's Christmas Party, and HUAH, the canned food drive which collected nearly 30,000 items. All of your hard work ensured that we would once again be named an Honor Council by the Indiana Association of Student Councils! Congratulations on a job well done! You seniors will be sorely missed, but you have been terrific role-models for the 320 members, and you have left a wonderful legacy for the junior officers. I have confidence that you juniors will continue the tradition of WC's Student Council being not only the biggest, but the BEST Student Council in the world!

Love,
Mrs. Wolff (aka Mama Wolff)

What it's like to be a:

Junior Year... what a blast! After focusing on homework and college and AP courses for so long I just need a break. Thank goodness I got my driver's license this year. From late night trips to Taco Bell to getting Starbucks in the morning before school, it really came in handy. Now I'm just one step closer to graduation!

The Moment That Changed Everything

First time experiences that impacted their lives forever

①

Dewayne Brown, 10
"English has always been my weakness in school. One day my teacher said she was going to pass out grade reports. I got a little nervous, but to my surprise I got my first A in English. Getting this A was a good experience for me. It showed me that if I apply myself and try hard, eventually my hard work will pay off."

②

Kalia Abel-Rymond, 12
"I have been separated from my mom since I was six years old. I went from my mom to my aunt and then to foster care. But this January I was reunited with my maternal mother and the rest of my family, which is the reason why I am now at Warren. I absolutely love Warren. It has been a lot of adapting and getting used to, but over all I wouldn't change it for the world."

③

John Asher, 11
"The first time I told my best friend I liked her, I was really afraid to tell her because I didn't want things to get weird between us. We had been friends since sophomore year and I had a girlfriend. But one day, I decided I needed to stop lying to myself. So I broke up with my girlfriend and told my friend how I really felt about her. I found out she felt the same way I did, and in the end it was all worth it."

④

Candice Perrtle, 12
"My first time competing in a music state competition was my junior year. I've been in marching band since I was a freshman and last year was the first time we went to state in eight years. Competing was so much fun! We didn't win state, but it was still one of my greatest high school memories."

⑤

Amber Fisher, 11
"I had several different goals I wanted to achieve when I came to Warren, but the one goal that was most important to me was, be the first in my family to graduate college with a Ph.D. Everyone in my family is pretty successful, they all graduated from high school, and continued on to graduate from college. But I want to go further than them."

⑥

Devion Law, 12
"Coming to Warren has taught me a lot about myself. It's helped me realize all the things I value in life such as family, creativity, music, and education. Education it important because knowledge is power, and with power you can do anything you want. Plus, I like holding great intellectual conversations with people. Warren has also taught me to value life, simply because you only have one to live."

⑦

Desmond Dubois-Dotson, 11
"My high school life has been filled with interesting first memories. But the memory that stuck out the most to me was the death of my friend. Her death had a huge impact on me. It was the first time I realized how quickly things can happen without any warning. I learned that I should live every single day like it's my last because I never know what may happen."

⑧

Brianca Smith, 10
"Being here at Warren has taught me a lot about myself. The biggest lesson I have learned is that family is important because when you don't have anyone else in the world you are guaranteed to have family. And also education is important because if you don't have an education you won't go anywhere in life."

⑨

Julius Harris, 11
"The summer before my freshman year, I attended Going for the Gold. I remember looking at all the upperclassmen and thinking to myself, this is going to be me in a few years. I want to be the one the freshmen look up to. That's when I first realized that I was going to make something of myself while I'm in high school."

The Answer

We asked tough questions. They gave honest answers.

Q. What cartoon character would you be for a day?	A.	I would be a Jedi so I could use the force.	Tweety.	Silver Surfer; he is the best super hero hands down or up!	Angelica from the Rugrats because she's bossy like me!
Q. Weirdest food combination?	A.	Ramen noodles with mashed potatoes.	Fries and ice cream.	Peanut butter with Doritos.	Kool-Aid powder on a pickle, it's sweet and sour.
Q. What would be your alter ego name?	A.	Nahtan.	Curly.	Philepay because it's snazzy.	Anif, she is my fierce side.
Q. What's your favorite home-cooked meal?	A.	Pepper steaks and noodles.	Coldo de marisco; it's a Spanish soup with seafood in it.	Blueberry muffins, they taste like heaven.	Macaroni and cheese because my GeeGee kills it!
Q. One thing you did to get through the recession?	A.	My family doesn't go out to eat as much.	I got a job.	I got a job.	Coupons, coupons, coupons.

junior essentials

perks to being a junior

Finally, YOU'RE the one asking people to prom.

Although there is still one more year to grow, it's nice to finally be the "Big Man on Campus." Watch out freshmen.

Thumbs up to finally being able to give blood...without parental consent.

Many Walker Career Center classes become available to juniors, like cosmetology and welding.

Laser tool used in welding

Driving is one of the biggest perks that comes to most juniors.

Who likes having a mailbox full of college pamphlets? Although it can get irritating, it can also be very eye-opening to hear from colleges you've never heard of.

My Life Sucks

Ever had one of those days where everything just seems like everything is going wrong?

Ripped Pants...

"At a golf tryout I heard a rip but didn't pay any attention to it. When I was teeing, my sister Maggie came up to me and whispered that there was a rip in my pants MLS."

Jessica Newman (11)

Rolling Bike...

"One day I was riding my dirt bike with sandals, and as I was changing gears, my sandal caught the ground and I flipped over the bike. Then, the bike proceeded to hit me and roll over me... MLS."

T.J. Williams (11)

Hot House...

"I was in sixth grade when my sister and I came home from school one day, and when we opened my front door, our house was on fire. No one was there when it went up in flames... MLS."

Kayla Smith (11)

Ms. Jumper...

"When I was about 10 years old, I tried to jump on the table, but my brother told me not to. Of course, I did it anyways. After I jumped, I fell through the table and had to be rushed to the hospital to get stiches... MLS."

Bria Hawkins (10)

Pancake Trick...

"One day during the summer of 2009, we were in the middle of a scrimage, varsity versus freshmen, and my job was to block the 55. When I was driving him down the field, I went to pancake him and my knee twisted, buckled, and I tore my ACL. I am still in recovery to this day and can't play football ... MLS."

Corey Drake (11)

I was so excited to get out of the Freshman Academy! But with more freedom came more responsibility- I really had to focus a lot more on school work...but it was nice to let loose on the weekends and just have fun! I enjoyed being a kid while I still am one- next stop, driver's license :)

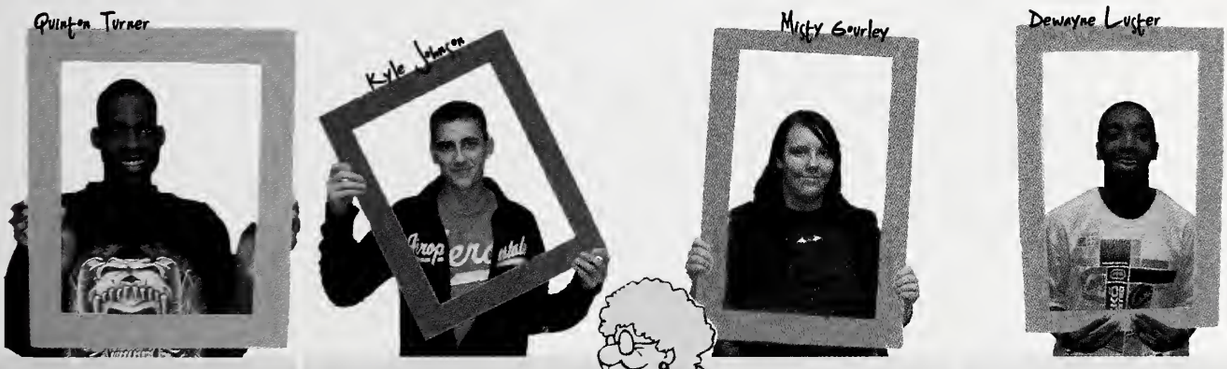
The Answer

We asked tough questions. They gave honest answers.



Q. Nickname?	A.	Q. Just Q.	My great grandma calls me Kevin.	Alex or Missy.	Dwayde.
Q. Funniest mistake you've ever made?	A.	I said, 'Do don't not.'	I yelled someone's name at this random person and it wasn't who I thought it was.	I called my sister mom.	I called my girlfriend another girl's name.
Q. What is your favorite class, besides lunch?	A.	Media Arts.	Principles of Biomedical Science.	Algebra.	U.S. History.
Q. If an actor played you for a day, who would it be?	A.	Mario.	Tom Cruise.	Demi Lovato.	Kevin Hart.
Q. Favorite 'Knock, Knock' joke?	A.	Orange you glad I didn't say banana?	Knock, Knock. Who's there? Boo. Boo who? Aw, don't cry. It's just a joke.	Knock, Knock. Who's there? Interrupting cow. Interrupting C- MOO!	The one about oranges.

i believe in...

"Keep your dreams alive. Understand to achieve anything requires faith and belief in yourself, vision, hard work, determination and dedication. Remember all things are possible for those who believe."
- Gail Devers, 1990s USA Olympian

Donny placed 45th out of 200 runners in the Harrison Invite

Cyrah spending time with her little sister Aubrey

...staying true

"I believe in being you. I see kids in school all the time trying to fit into a certain clique just to make friends or be popular. It really bothers me, because in the end, they end up not having friends and not being popular. People find out that they were not who they said they were. I believe that if people act like themselves instead of who they are not, high school would be so much more enjoyable."

- Cyrah Holder, 12

...fighting

"I believe the only way to make physical gain athletically is to get to the point of suffering and fight with all you have. Getting on the course, jumping in the pool or lining up on the track, you have to push your body until you hurt and then back it off. It simply keeps you at the same skill and strength level. But if you hit that point of pain, and fight your hardest to achieve more, you will grow."

- Donny Graham, 11

what makes your world go 'round?

Ryan Hopkins, 11
Playing and watching sports makes you feel like you're a part of something. It is also something to put all of your passion into.

Ella Bruno, 10
I think ignoring rumors is a good thing. Rumors are like weeds, they need fuel to grow. The more attention you give it, the more it grows. Sometimes when you react to rumors, people tend to think they're true. As long as you know they're not true, you should just ignore it. Who cares what others think? Just keep living, it's your life.

Andre Robinson, 10
Music. It calms me down if I'm in a bad mood, and it cheers me up.

Tiesha Cook, 12
My friends and family are what makes my world go round. Without them, I would not be able to live because they give me support and confidence everyday.

Terri Buggs, 12
Helping people. My mom is HIV positive and I like to help people with HIV.

My Life in a really, really long Sentence

A collection of not-so-simple summaries spelling out lives from graduation to funeral

In the words of Jack Chamberlain, 10

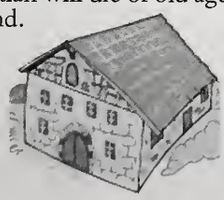
As soon as I graduate from Warren, I'll follow one of two paths: in the first one I will be attending IU or ECU and getting a bachelors and/or masters in computer programming, and my second option would probably be going to clown college then immediately becoming a clown-ninja; in either case I would become insanely rich for creating an amazing program or saving the world, and then I hope I'll have a quiet, peaceful death in my sleep and there will be lots of family/friends at my funeral.

In the words of Andrew Chorpenning, 11

I will go to college, be on the college swim team, get straight A's, graduate, become a swim coach and high school teacher, coach an Olympic athlete and become famous – and rich- for it, get married, live a happy life, and then die on a beach in Hawaii.

In the words of Meagan Gardner, 11

I'm going to stay in Indianapolis, go to college somewhere close by and study medicine, get my doctorate, get married to Christian Wilson, have two kids, then have a cute little house and cute little cars too, get some pets, watch my kids grow up, and then me and Christian will die of old age - the end.



In the words of Amanda Moore, 10

When I graduate from here, I'm going to college somewhere and then I hope I get a nice job, a nice boyfriend who would become a nice husband, and a big huge house in the middle of Poland (I'm one-fourth or one-third Polish!) because nobody ever talks about Poland, plus they have good sausage, and then when I'm 32 I'll be putting logs in my awesome Polish fireplace and I'll drop a log on to the fire-poker causing it to flip into the air and kill me - by then I can only hope I have a nice funeral.

The Answer

We asked tough questions. They gave honest answers.

Q. Celebrity look-alike?	A. Haley Williams- lead singer of Paramore.	Will Smith.	I don't have one.	Chris Brown (laugh out loud).
Q. If you could travel through time, when would you go?	A. The renaissance times in England.	Back to the time when Albert Einstein was alive.	I would travel to the beach everyday after school.	I would go back to when the dinosaurs were on Earth so I could see what came first, the chicken or the egg.
Q. How would you help the world if you had $10,000?	A. Save animals.	Give it to the homeless.	I would buy all of the schools in the Indianapolis area recycling bins.	I would try to stop the selling of cigarettes.
Q. Favorite cartoon character?	A. My favorite are the Power Puff Girls.	Static Shock.	Scooby Doo!	My favorite cartoon character is Stewie Griffin.
Q. What's your worst habit?	A. Biting my lip.	Eating slowly.	Talking with my hands.	Procrastination.

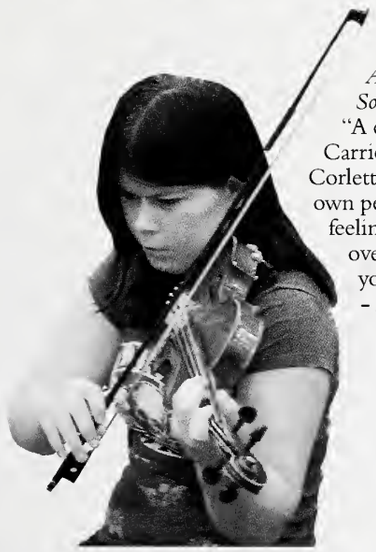
Life Theme Song

If one song could represent your life, what would it be?

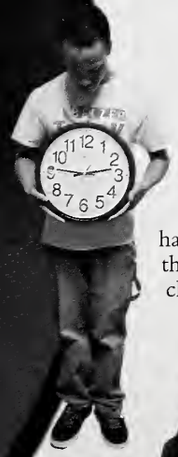


Kelsi Corlette, 11

Artist: Carrie Underwood
Song Title: Twisted
"A quote from Amy Dumas relates to me and this song because Carrie Underwood talks about love and going after it," Kelsi Corlette said. "I have always believed that life is about finding your own personal niche, what makes you tick. You might have had a gut feeling from a young age on what you want to be. Others search for over half their lives looking for it, because once you realize what you want to do, it's time to get serious and go for it."
- Amy Dumas, former American professional wrestler

Andre Paschall, 10

Artist: John Legend
Song Title: Ordinary People
Andre believes that taking life slower gives you time to appreciate it, because when you look back, you can't savor the things you miss.



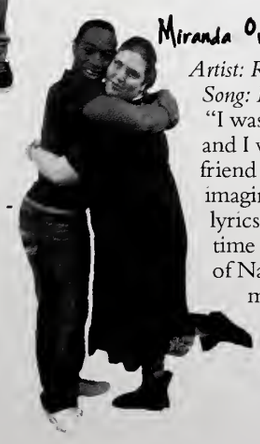
Daniel States, 11

Artist: Kid & Kudi
Song Title: Heart Of A Lion
A quote by Andy Warhol helps Daniel when times are hard. "People say time changes things, but you actually have to change them yourself.

Kenny Jones, 12

Artist: T-Pain, Feat. Manio
Song Title: All The Above
"This song makes me feel like I am above all conflicts on earth."

Miranda Owens, 12



Artist: Rob Thomas
Song: Her Diamonds
"I was sitting on a slide in the rain and I was crying, so my closest friend Nate said that he could imagine me singing some of the lyrics to this song. Now every time I hear this song I think of Nate and the song always makes me happy. That is now my theme song."

Josh Lanier, 11

Artist: Blue October
Song Title: Jump Rope
"Life is like a jump rope, it has its ups and downs. You just have to remember to take big leaps every chance you get."

The Answer

We asked tough questions. They gave honest answers.

	Jorge Espinoza	Taylor Wilson	Oliver Jimenez	Vivan Walker
Q. What is the nicest thing anyone ever did for you?	A. My mom got me an iPod without me asking her.	My friend gave me some money.	My dad got me three computers.	My mom gave me the rest of her money so I could go out of town with my friends.
Q. Worst class that you have ever taken? Why?	A. Health, because I have to take the same class again.	All math classes.	Health, because it was boring and pointless, and you're required to take it in high school.	World History, because I'm not interested in the past.
Q. Nickname?	A. Espo, because I have a hard last name, and that's what my coach calls me.	My step-mom likes to call me Tay-tay, but it's weird.	I never really had one.	Ms. Snickers, because I always laugh, and Snickers are my favorite candy.
Q. A word that you have the hardest time spelling?	A. Onomatopoeia.	Triskaidekaphobia.	Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious.	Field.
Q. Favorite cartoon character?	A. Peter Griffin.	Spongebob.	Stewie Griffin.	Spongebob.

Little to Large

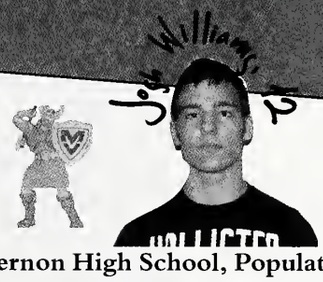
What was it like to go from a small school, knowing everyone, to a school of 4,000?

Questions

1. What are the biggest differences you have noticed between your old school and Warren?
2. What things are you now involved in that were not available for you at your old school?
3. Do you notice differences between students?
4. Was your school in a small town?

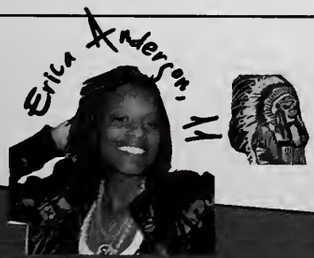
Shelbyville Sr. High School, Population: 1,155

1. It's three times bigger and it's very diverse. My old high school did not have a variety of races.
2. Coming here and seeing what it's like is just like Shelbyville. We have the same clubs and class electives.
3. My school was so small and we didn't have many fights.
4. The town I lived in was small; it was all within walking distance.



Mt. Vernon High School, Population: 1,000

1. There are a lot more students at Warren, and Mt. Vernon had block scheduling.
2. I wasn't in any school activities, so I really don't know what is different.
3. It is more diverse here than it was at my old school.
4. I lived in a small town called Fortville- at least it was small compared to Indianapolis.



1. The biggest difference is that Western High wasn't so diverse and we had more Hispanics.
2. At Western High we didn't have the dental assisting program and nothing like the Walker Career Center.
3. My school was very calm.
4. My town I lived in was very big. I lived in Las Vegas; you couldn't just walk everywhere. Sometimes you would have to drive to where you wanted to get.

Guest Speaker

In (1) __Algebra__ class today, we had a guest speaker. (2) Bomquisha Laneah claimed to be a/an (3) __Geography__ expert visiting from (4) the locker room, and quickly began to extol on the merits of his/her homeland. After 20 minutes of listening to him/her rant about the amount of rain they had per year, he/she took a/an (5) __apple__ out of his/her briefcase and tried to explain how it related to (6) __Biology__. "It's very (7) __sticky__ and (8) __ugly__." He/she explained. "Just like (9) __choir__." About 40 minutes into the lecture, he/she collapsed to the floor in a dead faint. Later we learned he/she suffered from narcolepsy, at the moment we thought he/she had died. While (10) Alexa Potts led half the class in a scream, the teacher called 911 and (11) __O'Charley's__ to order some comfort food after our (12) __magnificent__ ordeal.

Sara Whittemore, 9

Free Drinks

My next class with (1) __Mr. Polgorski__ is on the other side of the school, so when the bell rang, I (2) __ran__ out of (3) __choir__ class at full speed. I tripped over a/an (4) __person__ and fell right into the Coca-Cola deliveryman's cart. At least 12 dozen (5) __Coke__s went flying, some breaking open on impact with (6) __enormous__ results and others rolling conveniently into passing students book bags. I couldn't stand another (7) __dreadful__ 50 minutes in the tardy party after last time, so I continued to (8) __run__ down the hallways, only pausing to say sorry and maybe pick up a bottle or two. I made it into (9) __Mr. Hilmer__'s class just as the bell rang, and (10) __jumped__ down in my seat, exhausted. At least I had a free drink to refresh me. (11) __Woo__!

The Answer

We asked tough questions. They gave honest answers.

Q. Worst habit?	A.	Biting my nails.	Falling asleep in class.	Sleeping in.	Biting my nails.
Q. Celebrity look-alike?	A.	Ant off of ATL.	Melik from the House of Pain.	Lloyd.	Brad Pitt.
Q. One thing that you're worried about running out of?	A.	Money, because I need a lot of money.	Food, because I'm a big guy.	Money.	Water, because I don't want to die.
Q. If an actor played you for a day, who would it be?	A.	Will Smith.	Tracy Morgan.	It would be Rudy.	Megan Fox.
Q. What would be your alter-ego name?	A.	Lamar, because he is the opposite of me.	Tevin, because it sounds like a cool name.	I wouldn't have one.	Anti Favio.

Teachers remember 'back in the day'

(what will you remember from your high school years?)

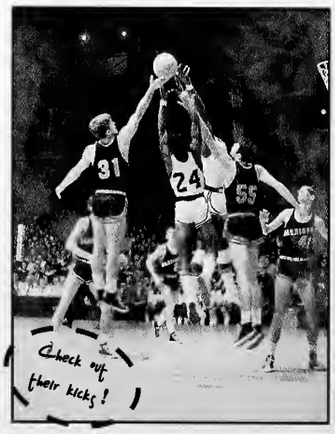
I remember back in the day when there weren't as many electronics as there are today. The electronics that came out that everyone had was the 8 millimeter camera and 45's, LP's and casette tapes.
-Mr. Steve Smith

I remember when you got in trouble if you held a girl's hand in the hallway.
-Mr.Craig Hawks

I remember when after home games everyone went to sock hops that cost 25 cents to get in and danced to 1950's 1960's music.
-Mr. Craig Hawks

I still remember Mr. Zimny's saying, "I like math, I need math."
-Mr. Brian Miller



I remember my senior year when I got the honor of being Marion County "Athlete of the Year" in football, basketball and track.
-Mr. Terry Woodburn

I remember when the place to go to after any sports games or if you just wanted to hang out, was the Dairy Queen over on 10th and Post.
-Ms. Mary Jane Smith

I remember if you got good grades, you could leave at the end of each class period and hang out in the senior class office to play Nintendo.
-Mr. Danny Williams

I remember when the front of the school used to be the back of the school.

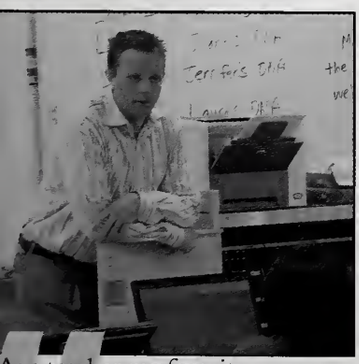
And the award goes to...

WCHS Teacher of the Year A.J McAdams

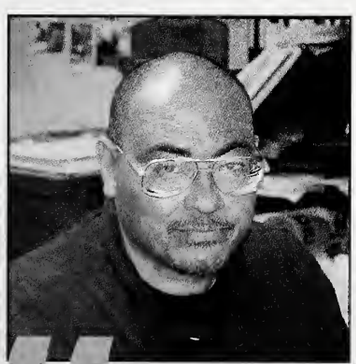


As a teacher my favorite memory is anytime a former student comes back and tells me that his or her Warren education really helps them in college or that the Principles of Biomedical Studies program and other science classes truly prepared them for college.

WCC Teacher of the Year Nancy Campbell

The thing I love the most about teaching is working with the students. I really enjoy my content area, especially Child Development since I am a mother of three!

WCHS Staff Member of the Year Tony Knight



What I enjoy most about being an Attendance Specialist is the opportunity to have a positive role in helping students decide that committing time to their education is a worthwhile investment for their future.

WCC Staff Member of the Year Norma Hickman

I don't care much for the cleaning but the thing I enjoy the most about Warren are the staff and the kids. I have met so many nice people and had so many great memories here.

In this town of ours...

The end of the school year seemed like it would never get here, but it did. Homecoming week, HUAH, winter break, school plays, show choir season and senior week all came and went. Changes to the school calendar and budget cuts were made. However, business will carry on as usual, just as they always do in the little town of Warren Central.

At 208 pages, the 2010 Warren Wigwam was smaller than the past several years in response to the tough economic times. Herff Jones printed 425 copies of the 73rd volume of the Wigwam. Although production costs went up, the yearbook was able to sell for the same as the previous year which were sold at an "early-bird" price of $50, a regular price of $55 and a final price of $60 in the late sale. Cathy Wines was the Herff Jones representative. Mark Haab served as the yearbook advisor and Publication director. Rich Shepler was the principal. Courtney Vawter served as yearbook editor-in-chief and Olivia Brubaker was the associate editor. The book was printed on 80 pound gloss paper and all page layouts were created with Adobe InDesign CS3 and Photoshop software and designed by the Wigwam Staff using Macintosh G4 and eMac computers.

Photography-
Most photos were taken by staff photographers using a Nikon D100, Nikon D80, and Canon SX10. Prestige, our official school photographer, provided sports group pictures and some special event coverage. All graphics and additional photos were used with permission or according to Fair Use guidelines.

Typography-
Headline and caption fonts were from the Antique Olive family. Accent fonts were Michael and Sharpie. Body copy was set in the Bergamo family 10 point.

Cover-
The simple cover was designed by the editors to showcase a cityscape to go with this year's theme. Because of the size of the school campus and number of students, former principal Tony Burchett often referred to the school as "This town of ours," a tradition current principal Rich Shepler continues. With so many clubs and sports and other opportunities, even our own police force, it is easy to see why. At 3,900 students and another 300 staff members, Warren Central was bigger than several of the towns nearby.

Workshops-
Students attended JEA/NSPA National Convention in Washington, DC. The staff also attended the Indiana High School Press Association State Convention at Franklin College where the 2009 Wigwam was a Hoosier Star Finalist.
